Taber Fights Vandenberg Move to Void ECA Slash

Congressional Battle Looms as Senator Seeks Showdown on Foreign Policy

By the United Press

America's nonpolitical foreign policy and Senate President Arthur H. Vandenberg's Foreign Affairs leadership face a test-by-fire in Congress this week.

Vandenberg himself forced the impending showdown over what he regards as disastrous House cuts in European Recovery Program spending.

His challenge was accepted quickly by Chairman Taber (R., N. Y.), whose Appropriations Committee successfully led the House drive which trimmed $2,160,000,000, or 26 per cent off the foreign recovery and relief spending plans.

Political Dynamite Involved

In an unusual move, the Senate President "requested" a Senate committee to hear his views in opposition to the House reductions. He will be heard, perhaps Wednesday, along with Secretary of State Marshall and ERP Administrator Paul G. Hoffman.

The aid battle, to be fought out in the two weeks preceding the Republican presidential convention at Philadelphia, is laden with political dynamite. Some observers believe it might throw Vandenberg into the race for the GOP presidential nomination, unwilling though he has been thus far.

Taber made clear yesterday that, with the backing of the House GOP leadership, he would stand firm for the House reductions which now come under Senate review. Asserting that Vandenberg had not "gone into the facts," Taber held out an "if called" possibility that he, too, might face the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Pre-Campaign Test

In reply to Taber, a member of Vandenberg's Senate Foreign Relations Committee recalled that the group heard more than 100 witnesses on ERP, took almost 3,000 pages of testimony and was aided by the detailed surveys of three commissions, including the non-governmental Harriman group.

There was no doubt that the foreign spending issue, along with its related reciprocal trade agreements program, will force a pre-campaign test of bipartisan foreign policy as well as Vandenberg's leadership in forging that policy.

The Senate President, himself, has characterized ERP as outside the field of political controversy. Both President Truman and Secretary Marshall repeatedly have described it as the very keystone of American efforts in the "cold war" with Russia.

An ERP spokesman made clear

Short Circuit Charges Pool, Kills Swimmer

Harrisburg, Pa., June 6 (AP).—A short circuit charged a public swimming pool with electricity today, killing one swimmer and injuring several others.

Dr. Winfield Yarnell, deputy coroner, said a short circuit in an underground line at the Gay-Way Swimming Pool charged the water in a 15-foot semicircle around a steel ladder.

Dr. Yarnell identified the dead swimmer as Clyde Peters, 12, of Harrisburg. He died of electric burns.

Peters and another swimmer, Rosemary Fritsch, 11, were within the charged area when suddenly both stiffened and sank beneath the water.

Other swimmers farther away felt the shock, but were able to scramble from the pool. Two youths leaped in after Peters and the girl but were instantly paralyzed and had to be helped from the pool.

One rescuer managed to help the Fritsch girl and Peters from the water and was hauled to safety by others. The girl was not hurt seriously.

Navy Rocket To Bag Plane 7 Miles Off

By The Associated Press

The Navy is developing a guided missile to knock down enemy planes more than seven miles away.

The rocket-propelled missile will ride a radio beam to targets from 5000 to 15,000 yards from the mother ship and will be ready for fleet installation by 1950.

Other new weapons recently announced:

A guided missile launched from shipboard or land and controlled by front-line troops. It will cost $500,000 to develop and will do the damage of naval gunfire, long range artillery or fighter-bombers.

Bigger and better bazookas for the Marines. The standard 2.36 inch bazooka will be replaced by a 3.5 inch for antitank defense and close support fire.

A new 20 mm. cannon to be installed in the latest type Navy planes starting next January. (One of the problems of vastly increased flying speeds has been the erratic behavior of old-style guns. Presumably the new cannon can fire accurately at the 600 mile per hour speeds of modern fighters.)

Hungarian Primate Defies Red Regime

Cardinal Mindszenty Urges Catholics to Ignore Press, Radio

Budapest, Hungary, June 6 (AP). Josef Cardinal Mindszenty, Primate of Hungary, told Catholics today that they should stop reading government newspapers and stop listening to Hungarian broadcasts.

In a pastoral letter read in all Roman Catholic churches, Cardinal Mindszenty said:

"To the bitter disgrace of this country, falsehood, deceit and terror were never greater in the course of her history."

He said the Communist-dominated regime is exerting "monstrous moral pressure."

The letter said Hungarian Catholic bishops are entirely united and that there are no negotiations between church and state. This presumably was in reference to government plans to take over church-maintained schools.

Cardinal Mindszenty has threatened to excommunicate any Catholic who supports the plan. Education Minister Gyula Ortutay announced May 16 he would not tolerate any "terrorism" by the Cardinal against Catholics who are ready to cooperate with the plan.

Four Die as Fire Destroys Hotel In Kilgore, Tex.

Kilgore, Tex., June 6 (AP).—Four persons were burned to death early today when a flash fire destroyed the two-story Tulsa Hotel here.

Three of the four victims were identified as George C. Young, Jacksonville, Tex.; Gerald Lee, 19, Odin, Ill., and Victor Eason, 31, Kilgore. The fourth was tentatively identified as Roy Evans, 35, Bowling Green, Ky.

More than two dozen other guests fled to safety. Five were hospitalized. One was not expected to live.

Ex-Justice Hughes 'Doing Very Well'

Former Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, 86, who is confined to his bed at his home, 2223 R st. nw., was reported "doing very well" yesterday by his physician, Dr. B. W. Leonard.

A son, Charles Evans Hughes, jr., New York attorney, said the former Supreme Court chief's condition was attributable to the "debilities of age."

Laborites' Paris Trip A Mystery

2 British Leaders Stir Speculation That French Fear Six-Power Pact

London, June 6 (AP).—Two leaders of Britain's ruling Labor Party dashed to Paris today for a meeting regarded here as something of a mystery.

Morgan Phillips, secretary-general of the Labor Party, flew to the French capital from Vienna, canceling an engagement to address an International Socialist Conference.

James Griffiths, Minister of National Insurance, went to Paris from London to meet Phillips. An official statement said they were to discuss "party matters."

It was speculated here, however, that their talks concerned international matters. Speculation included:

1. Phillips and Griffiths are seeking to allay fears of French Socialists that the still secret six-power agreement on the future of western Germany jeopardizes French security. It is expected the agreement will be announced tomorrow.

2. Leaders of the Socialist parties of the 16 countries participating in the European Recovery Program might be planning an emergency meeting to talk about the United States House of Representatives' slash in the aid program.

British newspapers printed reports from Paris that opposition to French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault was stiffening over concessions he reportedly made on the Ruhr question to American wishes.

A grave view was taken in France and Britain of recent Washington developments.

French unrest over the new plans for western Germany might entail the possibility of their rejection by the French government. If France withdrew its support of the agreement reached by her representatives and those of the United States, Britain, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg, it would have serious repercussions in all western capitals.

Accord Criticized By Soviet, De Gaulle

London, June 6 (U.P.).—The Russians and a spokesman for Gen. Charles de Gaulle's Rally of the French People criticized the six-power accord on western Germany today, 24 hours before the terms of the pact were to be made public.

The treaty is to be released at 11 a. m. (6 a. m. EDT) Monday. The Russians were to have been informed of the agreement before its publication as a diplomatic courtesy.

Pravda, official Soviet publication, charged the six-power treaty conference at London completed dismembering western Germany.

U. S. and Britain Agree on German Raw Material Use

Berlin, June 6 (NYHT.).—The United States and Britain have agreed to give some sections of German business temporary power to allocate raw materials. This was called an effort to cut red tape which is impeding the export-import program of Bizonia.

The Allied bi-partite board decided to limit the power to those industrial groups, in which raw materials are clearly in short supply, and to withdraw it when shortages end.

Up to now the German economic administration of Bizonia has had the power of allocation. A representative of the German economic administration and Allied officials will attend meetings of the industry groups to guarantee a fair hearing for all businessmen.

An Anniversary

Ceremonies Note D-Day In 2 Nations

London, June 6 (AP).—The fourth anniversary of D-Day was marked today on both sides of the Channel which American and British forces crossed four years ago.

At Utah Beach, in Normandy, United States Ambassador Jefferson Caffery said the enemy seemed to have every advantage in 1944.

"The problems which we face now as we struggle to bring about European recovery are strikingly similar," he said. "There are times when the enemies of that recovery seem also to have every advantage."

Caffery and President Vincent Auriol of France toured the invasion beaches.

At Portsmouth, England, Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery unveiled a memorial which faces the sea at a spot from which units of the armada sailed for the Normandy beaches. The memorial is a simple stone.

Montgomery said the D-Day exploit was an example of a perfect combined operation, requiring the utmost of precision on the part

Gaming Raid Help Promised By Gov. Lane

Maryland Counties Assured State Police Aid If Requested

Gov. William Preston Lane, jr., last night assured Maryland's counties they would get State Police aid any time they requested it to suppress gambling.

And that goes also, he added, for any other kind of lawbreaking.

The Maryland chief executive, however, declined to say whether there are plans pending for use of State Police in other raids similar to the one Saturday on Rocway Towers in Howard County, one mile north of Laurel.

In that raid 30 State troopers stormed the castle-like casino on Washington-Baltimore blvd., arrested 49 persons and seized $60,000 cash, an assortment of gambling equipment and a number of guns.

The Governor, calling the Rocway Towers raid "complete and successful," said State Police had been planning that raid since last March when the body of Hunter Lewis, 45-year-old convict and one-time employe of Rocway Towers, was found under brush off a little used road near Laurel.

Police then theorized Lewis had been slain in a double-cross, possibly after having planned to be the fingerman in a hijacking holdup of the Towers.

To Watch Situation

The Governor said no influx of gamblers from the District of Columbia into Maryland had been called to his attention until a few days ago, when he was called by a Washington newspaper. The Saturday raid, he said, was staged independent of any such influx.

State police were asked to handle the Rocway Towers raid by State's Attorney Daniel Murray, jr., of Howard County.

Murray said last night he had no plans for other immediate raids, but that he planned to "keep after the situation and keep it under control."

President To Put Spurs To Congress

Truman Tells Friendly Crowds He Will Turn Heat On When He Returns

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Aboard Presidential Special, June 6.—President Truman journeyed across the Western Plains today, telling friendly crowds that he would "take Congress for a ride" on his return to Washington.

He made the remark after being presented with cowboy boots and a pair of gleaming spurs.

Behind the smile that accompanied Mr. Truman's words was a deep anger with the Republican-dominated Eightieth Congress. He has been openly feuding with it from the start of this transcontinental trip, and he apparently has decided to make its record a major 1948 issue.

Received Cordially

The President got a cordial reception all along the line today as his 16-car train moved slowly across Nebraska and Wyoming. The sun was out and crowds in their Sunday best were waiting at every stop.

Their cheers did much to drive away the memory of last night's disheartening experience in Omaha, where a shockingly small crowd turned out to hear Mr. Truman's farm speech. Only 2000 persons (some counted only 1200) showed up in Omaha's Ak-Sar-Ben Coliseum, which holds 10,000. The Chief Executive found himself facing an acre of vacant chairs, and his voice beat forlornly against the emptiness. Only two weeks before, the coliseum was jammed by the lure of Spike Jones and his dish-pan symphony.

There was much brooding and fault-finding about it aboard the Presidential Special early this morning. But Mr. Truman himself did not appear to join in it. One explanation was that the public was led to believe the meeting was for veterans only, and therefore did not attempt to get in.

Ritchie Withdraws Support

(The Associated Press reported from Omaha that William Ritchie, State Democratic chairman and a delegate to the party's national convention, announced he will not support President Truman for re-election.

(He declared: "After what happened yesterday I've reluctantly come to the conclusion that to achieve success in the fall election the Democratic Party needs a new nominee for President. And I expect to vote for some Jeffersonian Democrat for that nomination."

(Asked to elaborate on his reference to the President's visit in Omaha Saturday, Ritchie added that "it was a question of advisers, of the inability of Mr. Truman to recognize that he is not being wisely advised." He would not comment further.)

A crowd of 4000 was waiting for him when the train stopped this morning at Grand Island, Nebr. Miss Ruth Kuester, a rodeo queen, gave Mr. Truman a pair of gleaming spurs.

"Put 'em on, Harry," a man yelled.

"These spurs are wonderful," the President said, smiling his appreciation. "When I get them on, I can take the Congress to town. I'll give them a trial just as soon as I get back to Washington."

Red Sentry Reported Shot

Soviet Charges U. S. Kidnaped Russian Officer for British

5 Americans Accused Of Attack in Berlin

English Assert Colonel Deserted

Berlin, June 6 (AP).—Communist organs launched a fresh propaganda campaign against the western Allies today, and the Russians charged that five Americans shot a Russian sentry in Berlin.

Col. W. A. Falck, United States provost marshal, said he had not heard of the incident, but other American authorities reported a letter of protest has been received.

The Russians said the sentry was shot while on duty in a wooded area near the residence of Marshal Vassily D. Sokolovsky, Soviet military commander. Four armed American soldiers and an American civilian were blamed.

The propaganda campaign, in Russian-controlled papers, is apparently designed to provoke fear and discontent in Berlin's worker population, and to force the western Allies to withdraw from Berlin.

Polish, Ukrainian DPs Boo Russian Officers

Munich, Germany, June 6 (AP).—A crowd of angry displaced persons from Poland and the Ukraine stoned and booed five Russian officers when they visited a DP camp at Mittenwald today, a United States Army spokesman said.

The Russians were there seeking to persuade the internees to return to their Russian-dominated homelands.

Moscow, June 6 (U.P.).—The Soviet Union charged today Americans kidnaped a high Russian officer on duty in Germany and turned him over to the British who subjected him to "unprecedented tortures" for a month before he was released.

A dispatch by Tass, official Soviet news agency, said Lieut. Col. Y. D. Tassoyev, chief Soviet reparations officer at Bremen, was kidnaped so the British could force him to renounce his Soviet citizenship.

"As Tassoyev refused to do this, he was repeatedly beaten up," Tass charged.

British Statement

(The British Foreign Office said Tassoyev deserted April 23 and asked British officers for protection as a political refugee. He was flown to London. He asked to be returned to Germany after a brief stay, officials said. The request was granted and he was turned over to Russian authorities in Berlin, May 20.

("The gentleman came here o his own free will," a Foreign Office spokesman said today. "He lef because he asked to leave." He denied the Tass charges.)

Tass said the officer was kidnaped when he accepted an invitation to go for an automobile ride after dining with an American. At daybreak he was shoved into a

Calls It 'Vicious, Debased'

Wiley Assails Red Propaganda Against Mundt-Nixon Bill

By the United Press

Chairman Alexander Wiley (R., Wis.) of the Senate Judiciary Committee yesterday issued a scathing denunciation of the United States Communist Party and the New York Daily Worker for their "vicious and debased propaganda" against the Mundt-Nixon Communist-control bill.

Emphasizing that neither he nor the committee has reached a final decision on the measure, he accused the party of using "every shady trick in its dishonorable repertoire" to castigate committee members and arouse public opinion and emotion against the bill.

Wiley took the unusual course of issuing an "open letter" to the editors of the Daily Worker, the party's official newspaper. In vitriolic terms he denounced Communist officials, not for their opposition to the bill as such, but for their demeanor before the committee and their entire approach to the question.

The measure was passed by the House last month and is now being considered by Wiley's committee. It ended public hearings last week and decided to take no further action until it gets opinions on the bill's constitutionality from United States Attorney General Tom C. Clark and three private constitutional lawyers.

Two organizations, the Committee of 1000 and the Veterans Committee Against the Mundt-Nixon Bill, meanwhile continued their fight against the measure.

The former made public the "stern protests" of 25 leaders in education, religion, science and the arts, most of whom said they feared the bill would endanger civil liberties.

The veterans group, headed by Russel H. Fluent, treasurer of the State of Washington, said 100 vet-

Flood Waters Again Pound Oregon Dikes

Troops, Civilians Work At Levees; 47,981 Are Reported Homeless

Portland, Oreg., June 6 (AP).—A new crisis arose today along the lower Columbia River Valley as crest waters of a new flood battered levees already weakened and broken in a week of high water.

Army engineers reported the main earthworks guarding the industrial heart of the lower valley are still holding, but noted that the 120-mile dike sector from Portland to the Pacific will remain in danger for several days.

A Government river forecaster said the new crest pounding toward the Portland - Vancouver, Wash., area will come "within a hair" of the earlier peak.

A small dike burst in the Clatskanie sector this morning where high waters of the two-week-old flood crest crashed against an incoming tide.

Thousands of troops, Coast Guardsmen and civilians are working on the 43 dike districts from Portland to near Astoria, Oreg., at the mouth of the great river.

The Red Cross announced that 47,981 persons have been left homeless by the floods. Oregon was hardest hit, with 26,000 homeless. Washington had 17,000 homeless, and Idaho, 1626.

The death toll stood at 26. Vanport has yielded two bodies and the Red Cross said 52 were missing.

Everyone but workers was ordered out of dike-protected areas days ago.

Red 'Aggression' Equal to Hitler's, Sullivan Charges

Pittsburgh, June 6 (U.P.).—Secretary of Navy John L. Sullivan today accused Russia of "ruthless aggression" equal to that carried out by Nazi Germany. He asserted the United States will not meet the threat with "appeasement."

Without mentioning Russia by name, he said that 250 million people who love democracy "exist today under the guns of a colossus that says that communism and democracy cannot live in the same world."

"Already we have seen Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania gobbled up," he said. "We witnessed the death of democratic processes in Poland. We watched Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Romania fall victims to as ruthless an aggression as any country had suffered at the hands of Hitler."

Capper Quits Senate Race; Represented Kansas 30 Years

(See "People in the News," Page 2)

By the United Press

Senator Arthur Capper (R., Kans.) announced yesterday he has "decided not to run for reelection" to the Senate.

Capper, who will be 83 in July, had previously been campaigning actively for the Republican nomination. His decision to withdraw came as a complete surprise.

He is chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, and a member of the Foreign Relations and District Committees.

Capper has served in the Senate 0 years and is the dean of the lawmaking body in point of age.

Capper's age had been one of he major issues in the Kansas ace. Some influential figures, including publishers Roy Roberts of he Kansas City (Mo.) Star, and William Allen White, jr., of the Emporia (Kans.) Gazette, had reportedly urged Capper to retire rather than seek renomination.

He had deplored this and announced he was in the Kansas race to stay. There had been no hint of change in his attitude until yesterday's statement.

In it he said:

"I have decided not to run for reelection to the United States Senate, and accordingly shall not file for the Republican nomination.

"I appreciate more deeply than I can express the honor that the people of Kansas have accorded me by keeping me in the Senate as their representative for 30 years.

"I have tried to represent them honestly and to the best of my ability. I am retiring at the close of my present term with few regrets and many pleasant memories and friendships."

Capper's retirement from the Senate would put Senator George D. Aiken (R., Vt.) next in line for chairmanship of the Agriculture Committee if the Republicans retain control of Congress in the November elections.

Dairy Offer Is Accepted, Strike Averted

$4 Weekly Pay Hike Avoids Area Walkout Involving 9 Plants

A threatened walkout of local dairy workers and milk drivers was averted last night three hours before the midnight strike deadline when the union workers voted to accept an industry wage offer.

The workers voted 606 to 404 at a stormy session at Turner's Arena to accept a proposal which will give about 1000 of 1500 workers a $4 weekly increase. The union sought a 30-cent raise for hourly workers and increased commissions for commissioned workers.

On the basis of a 48-hour week, the $4 boost will constitute an hourly wage increase of about eight and one-third cents.

Involved in the dispute were the Milk Drivers and Dairy Employes Local 246 (AFL), which claims a membership of 1500, and nine Greater Washington dairies which supply more than 80 per cent of the area's milk.

The union said that hourly plant workers, numbering about 1000, will receive a flat $4-a-week raise.

The agreement also provides a $4 increase in the weekly minimum guaranteed income for retail and wholesale routemen.

Immigration Issue Perils Truce Effort For Palestine

U. N. Mediator's Talks End on Note Of Gloom; Jews Routed From Jenin

Haifa, Palestine, June 6 (NYHT).—The United Nations Security Council's truce efforts appeared to be foundering tonight on the issue of Jewish immigration to the Holy Land.

Israel remained adamant in its determination to open the gates of Palestine to all immigrants, and the final truce talks between Count Folke Bernadotte, special U. N. mediator, and Jewish leaders ended on a pessimistic note.

Count Bernadotte refused comment here, but Moshe Shertok, Israel's foreign minister and chief truce negotiator, said, "I would not take it upon myself to sound the least bit encouraging."

Up to Bernadotte

Shertok said the immigration question had been discussed and then added, "It doesn't seem likely that there will be any further talks." He indicated that it is now up to Count Bernadotte to inform both of the contestants of the cease-fire terms and the date on which he wishes the truce to become effective.

This communication, Shertok said, might come any time after Monday. Then, he added, it would be up to both the Arabs and the Jews to accept or reject the plan. If the Jews disapproved of it, he said, they would feel at liberty to appeal to the Security Council for a reversal.

While the truce talks proceeded, Israeli troops were suffering a setback. Unofficial Jewish sources said heavy Iraqi counter-attacks, supported by artillery, had pushed Jewish forces out of Jenin.

Attack Beaten Off

The Iraqi also used artillery, planes and armored cars in an effort to retake Qaqun, Arab village north of Tulkarm which was captured Saturday by Jewish forces. An Israeli communique said the attack had been beaten off and that Iraqi casualties included 200 dead, 250 wounded.

[The Jewish high command said tonight a new Arab drive across the Lebanese frontier has driven Jewish forces from the northern border village of Malikya.

In addition the Syrian army recaptured the village of Mishmar Hay Yarden, near the Syrian border south of Lake Hula, the Associated Press reported.]

DP Measure Held Designed To Bar Refugees

By The Associated Press

Earl G. Harrison denounced the Senate bill to admit 200,000 displaced Europeans to the United States as "a booby trap, . . . a sorry mess, ill befitting a great democracy."

Harrison issued a statement attacking the bill as inadequate in his capacity as chairman of the "Citizens Committee on Displaced Persons." He was Federal immigration commissioner in 1942-1944.

"It has been deliberately designed to exclude DPs, not admit them," he said of the bill. "Among other things it discriminates on grounds of religion, nationality and occupation." He said it was particularly unfair to Jews.

Harrison urged that House Republican leaders undo the "monstrosity of Senate action." He continued:

"An analysis of the provisions . . . revealed the tortuous and devious methods adopted to abandon the displaced persons."

Harrison's committee includes such persons as Barry Bingham, James A. Farley, Herbert H. Lehman, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Edward R. Stettinius, Herbert Bayard Swope and Charles P. Taft.

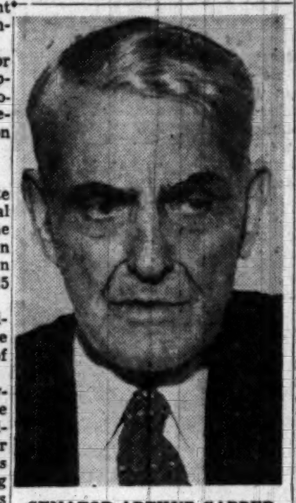
Washington to Lose Veteran Fighter For Home Rule When Capper Departs

During his political lifetime, Senator Arthur Capper has been many things—an isolationist, a crusading dry, a supporter of more than a few early New Deal policies.

Yet to the voteless residents of Washington he is best known as their most persistent champion for the right of franchise.



SENATOR ARTHUR CAPPER
Won't Run for Reelection

For those who have fought for home rule in the District and representation in Congress, the proposed departure of the veteran Republican from the Washington scene will be a sore loss.

Elected in 1918

Capper was elected to the Senate in 1918 and soon after his arrival in Washington was assigned to the District Committee. He has been a member of the committee (in fact, was its chairman from 1925 until 1933) since that time.

He is also chairman of the Agriculture and Forestry Committee and ranking majority member of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Capper's observance of his eighty-third birthday July 14 will not be the glad occasion his birthday anniversaries in the past have been, for the veteran Senator from Kansas will realize that it is his mounting age—and that alone—that has brought demands in his home State that he step aside.

During his political career he has known only one setback. That was in 1912 (the year of the Bull Moose Party) when he lost the Governorship of Kansas by only 29 votes.

But he ran again in 1914 and became Governor. He was reelected in 1916 and then, in 1918, made his successful bid for a seat in the Senate.

Farm Joural Publisher

During the years he has also become one of the world's largest publishers of farm journals. His periodicals today have more than four million average net paid circulation.

Capper was born of Quaker parents in Garnett, Kan. At the age of 19, after graduation from the Garnett High School at the head of his class, went to Topeka and got a job as a typesetter on the Daily Capital. Before leaving the paper, he became a reporter, city editor and then managing editor.

In 1891 he went to New York and got a job as a reporter on the New York Tribune. A year later the Topeka Daily Capital hired him as its Washington correspondent and Capper came here to gaze down from the press gallery on a Senate floor, where more than 20 years later he would be sitting as a Senator.

In 1892 he purchased the weekly North Topeka Mail with $1000 of his savings and $1200 credit, then bought the Kansas Breeze and merged the two. The publication later was to become the Kansas Farmer.

His third newspaper purchase was the paper where he had started as a typesetter, the Daily Capital. Gradually his publishing interests expanded until he owned nearly a dozen publications and three radio stations.

A teetotaler, Capper has worked for the return of prohibition and last year introduced legislation to ban all liquor advertising from interstate commerce, which would, in effect, outlaw liquor advertising in most newspapers, magazines and radio broadcasts.

Capper was frankly isolationist in 1920 when he fought against United States entry into the League of Nations. He was still an isolationist in the era that preceded World War II, opposing revision of the Neutrality Act, Selective Service and Lend-Lease.

He supported much of the New Deal farm legislation advocated by President Roosevelt in the Democratic Congress of 1933 to 1935. He also voted for the Wagner Labor Relations Act.

Capper's wife, daughter of Samuel Crawford, who was Governor of Kansas during the Civil War, died in 1926. Since his wife's death, he has lived at the Mayflower Hotel.

Taber to Fight Vandenberg On House Cut in ECA Funds

yesterday that his organization "was not retrenching" in its spending plans, regardless of the House cuts. He said Hoffman's organization would proceed with its operations based on Congress' authorization for 12 months of $5,300,000,000—all but one billion in cash. For ERP alone the House provided four billion dollars in cash, but ordered the sum stretched over 15 months.

State Department officials, meanwhile, pondered with anxiety the weekend diplomatic cables from American embassies abroad. They told reporters reaction from most European capitals was "bad" and that the Communist-inspired press was playing the House reduction as a United States "backdown."

Roman Leftist Press Gloats Over Cut

Rome, June 6 (AP).—Rome's far left press continued today emphasizing the reduction in Marshall Plan funds voted by the United States House of Representatives.

Avanti, organ of the pro-Communist Socialists, said:

"The Marshall Plan has been reduced. Those who thought it their duty to vote for a loaf are served; they will have but a morsel."

Unita, the Communist organ, headlined a dispatch: "The Marshall Plan Cheat."

Anti-Communist papers printed the news, but kept quiet editorially.

French Papers Critical of Cuts

Paris, June 6 (AP). — L'Aube, organ of Premier Robert Schuman's Popular Republican movement, said today of the cutting of Marshall Plan funds in the House:

"The decision of the American Representatives gives new arguments to the cominform" (Communist International Information Bureau).

L'Humanite, Communist Party newspaper, said French leaders "discover now they sold France for a slice of bread."

Soviet's Berlin Paper Sees 'Illusions' Ended

Berlin, June 6 (AP).—Taegliche Rundschau, the Soviet Army's official newspaper, commented today on the reduction of funds for the European Recovery Program in the House of Representatives.

"This is the end of an illusion—the Marshall Plan drops its mark," the paper told Germans. "The price is too high for the bankers and western European nations began to doubt the wisdom of trusting America."

AFL and CIO Agree On Aid Program

By The Associated Press

The AFL and CIO have settled their dispute over labor's part in the foreign aid plan and are agreed on giving it joint support, the program's overseas labor chief, Boris Shishkin, reported yesterday.

The big labor organizations are "in complete agreement," Shishkin told a reporter, on the program of the Economic Cooperation Administration.

Chiang and Stuart Ignore Student Talk Against U. S.

Nanking, June 6 (AP). — United States Ambassador J. Leighton Stuart talked for an hour today with President Chiang Kai-shek, but he said later he did not raise the question of student anti-American agitation.

It was presumed he told Chiang of the impending arrival of Roger Lapham, who heads the American aid group to China.

Prof. Sun Min-ching proposed at a meeting at Nanking University that a commission of Chinese educators, legislators and newspapermen go to Japan "to determine for ourselves whether the United States is rebuilding Japanese strength."

Draft Bill Tops Finish Drive On Legislation

By The Associated Press

Congress put the two-year draft bill at the top of its legislative heap yesterday and prepared to work overtime in a two-weeks drive toward a June 19 finish.

Many headline bills—oleomargarine tax repeal, social security, civil rights, farm planning, and others—seemed in danger of being shouldered aside in the adjournment rush.

The Senate picks up debate on the selective service measure where it left off Friday night—with Senator Langer (R., N.D.) holding the floor for an amendment to wipe out segregation in the armed forces.

But Langer told a reporter he's had his say and will let others take over. A Republican-Democrat coalition is anxious to shelve the racial issue proposal and get about the business of grinding out the military bill.

House leaders hope to tackle the draft measure before the week is out.

The House, in the meantime, arranged to debate a Senate-approved measure to let 200,000 of Europe's displaced persons into this country.

There was an air of waste on Capitol Hill as lawmakers took up other important measures.

The Senate Finance Committee hoped to finish work before Monday night on the third "must" bill—a one-year extension of the reciprocal trade agreement authority which expires Saturday.

Chariman Millikin (D., Colo.) of the Finance Committee said he expects both the Senate and House to beat the Saturday deadline. The House has passed the extension, which gives Congress a veto control over certain tariff cuts.

The Senate Judiciary Committee is taking up the Mundt-Nixon anti-Communist bill and an anti-lynching measure.

Chairman Wiley (R., Wis.) said about all he expects on the latter in a meeting tomorrow is a decision on when to hold a "full discussion" of its terms. Proponents said that didn't sound encouraging for Senate action before adjournment. The House has passed it.

But Wiley held out hope for the committee action on the Mundt-Nixon measure, also passed by the House.

Leaders in both bodies plan Saturday session this week as well as some night meetings.

A long list of appropriation bills is filtering through the two chambers. They finance Government agencies during the year that begins July 1. If Congress follows its usual session-end pattern, several of these money bills will be jammed through at a final night session.

Fate of several far-reaching bills is uncertain. These include:

Oleomargine tax repeal—passed by the House and cleared by the Senate Finance Committee but awaiting a nod from Senate GOP leaders.

Long range housing—the Senate-approved bill still is in the House Banking Committee but Chairman Wolcott (R., Mich.) of that group said some bill will be passed, probably minus public housing provisions.

Social security—an extension of benefits is awaiting House consideration. Senate action appears unlikely.

Tax revision—Numerous technical changes in tax laws are ready for House action but the Senate may not act.

Aid to education—The Senate has passed a bill but House leaders seem uninterested.

Civil rights—Senate leaders still talk about action on antilynch or antipoll tax but time is short. Any such measure adopted probably would be tacked onto some other bill in the final rush.

Farm legislation—A long-range farm plan appears stalled in both Houses but House leaders are pushing for an extension of post-war Government supports on numerous farm commodities that expire at the end of 1948.

Government pay raise—Senate and House leaders have been unable to reach agreement on amounts but may do so.

3 Bodies Recovered

Norfolk, Va., June 6 (AP).—The bodies of three men were recovered from Hampton Roads today where a swamped launch left 28 sailors and Marines missing last Monday night.

Truman Plans Congressional Spur on Return From Trip

dian in full feathered regalia, came up to the train with a 2-year-old papoose, Bruce White Buffalo. He presented Mr. Truman a peace pipe. A little 10-year-old girl, Kay Stewart, handed a bouquet of orchids to Mrs. Bess Truman, who, with Miss Margaret Truman, joined the train in Omaha this morning.

The President thanked the townsfolk for their cordiality, and then remarked: "I am not in the habit of making speeches of any kind on Sunday, but I couldn't to save my life refuse to say how much I appreciate all this hospitality. This goes to show that the Middle West is the most hospitable part of the United States, and I was raised in the Middle West, and I know.

Men Sport Beards

The next stop was Kearney, Nebr., an old frontier town which was celebrating the seventy-fifth anniversary of its founding. Nearly all the men were sporting beards, the kind that used to adorn the chins of their Indian-fighting grandfathers.

Here he was presented with a pair of Western boots. He grinned and said to the crowd:

"I got spurs in Grand Island. So with these boots I can really take Congress for a ride now."

President Truman, the First Lady and Margaret left the train and attended services at Kearney's First Baptist Church. The sun was blazing down on the town and the White House family dressed accordingly. Mr. Truman was wearing a tan gabardine suit, Mrs. Truman had on a gray tailored suit, a black straw hat with wide green ribbon, and an orchid. Margaret wore a checkered tailored suit and a simple blue straw hat.

The Truman's, with their aides, sat in the rear of the church, and listened atentively as the young pastor, the Rev. Vernon P. Pearson, preached on "The essence of Christianity." Miss Truman's mezzo-contralto could be heard when the congregation sang "I Love Thy Kingdom, Lord."

Later, talking to the crowd from the rear platform of the train, Mr. Truman said:

"We had a most wonderful service over at the Baptist Church and a sermon I wish all of you could have heard. It would have done you good. And I hope that some time you will hear that sermon and that you will practice it after you have heard it."

He said he hoped to return to Kearney sometime when he was not in a hurry.

Traveling almost directly west, the train stopped next at North Platte, Nebr., once a wide-open rendezvous of desperados and for a time the home of "Buffalo Bill" Cody. About 3000 were on hand to cheer the President.

North Platte is the home town of Gen. Butler B. Miltonberger, commander of the 35th Division, Mr. Truman's old World War I outfit which had a reunion in Omaha yesterday.

Talking to the crowd, Mr. Truman told a story about General Miltonberger and an experience he had overseas in World War II.

"He said he was going up to the front and they began to shell the road," Mr. Truman related. "And he got under a tank. And there was a private under the tank with his back to him. After the shelling let up a bit, General Miltonberger said to the young man:

"'That was worse in this war than in the last.' And the boy whirled around and said, 'Were you in the last war?' The general said, 'Yes.' And the boy said, 'You are the damndest fool I have ever seen.'"

A ripple of laughter came from the crowd. Mr. Truman promised to return and discuss the issues of the 1948 campaign—something he said at virtually every stop—and the train continued on westward.

Apropos the dismal turnout last night at Omaha, there were many explanations and some alibis, but there was general agreement that somebody had blundered.

Heard by Millions

Radio men said today that Mr. Truman's speech came over the air very well, and since it was broadcast by all four major networks, it must have been heard by millions. They said that the applause—even though the crowd was small—seemed not at all inadequate.

The spectacle in the Coliseum, however, was melancholy in the extreme. The vast open spaces on the floor and in the galleries had a depressing effect, even on reporters hostile to Mr. Truman.

These were some of the explanations: A large part of the general public was under the impression that the affair in the Coliseum was open only to members of the Thirty-fifth Division Association; 160,000 people had seen Mr. Truman marching in the parade earlier and were content to hear his speech over the radio; the local Democratic organization, having heard that the trip was "nonpolitical," did not bestir itself to drum up a crowd.

James Quigley, Democratic National Committeeman for Nebraska, said no politician had filled the Coliseum since Franklin D. Roosevelt spoke there in 1937.

"In those days," Quigley said, "The farmers didn't have the price of a radio. They didn't have enough money to subscribe to a newspaper. So they turned out to hear Roosevelt, who was lifting them out of the depression."

Nebraska farmers only vote Democratic in hard times. And since these are good times—especially in this corn and hog belt—they are conservative and overwhelmingly Republican.

It was asking a lot, it was argued, to expect Nebraska Republicans to turn out to hear a Democratic President do a job on a Republican Congress.

But if all these things were so, it was being asked, why in the world was it arranged for Mr. Truman to speak in the Coliseum?

The Omaha Democrats agreed, finally, that it was a mistake.

The man who had made the arrangements, they explained, was Ed McKim. He was a buddy of Mr. Truman in World War I. Later he was an administrative assistant at the White House, and now is an insurance executive in Omaha.

The moral of the affair, if any, seems to be this: Political arrangements ought to be made by professional politicians, preferably by those in the Democratic National Committee.

Veterans Bills Get Backing

Chairman Edith Nourse Rogers of the House Veterans Committee said yesterday she has been assured by Republican leaders that several veterans bills will be given floor priority in the preadjournment rush.

She listed measures increasing the benefits available to disabled former servicemen as almost certain to reach the White House before Congress quits June 10. Others have a "good chance" of floor action, she said.

The Massachusetts Republican Congresswoman said she was prepared to stage a "last ditch fight" if the GOP Steering Committee fails to include the bills in the calendar of "must business" it is now drawing up.

House Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr., has announced that "some veterans measures" probably will be included in the closing days' calendar.

Wilson Wants Deferments In Draft Bill

By the United Press

Senator George A. Wilson yesterday said he would try to write specific deferment standards into the pending Senate draft bill.

The Iowa Republican, a member of the Armed Services Committee, said he was preparing an amendment to spell out the basis on which farm workers, scientific students, "essential industrial workers," etc., would be exempted from the 19-through-25 measure on which the Senate resumes debate today.

The bill as written merely defines policy and leaves it up to the President to decide in detail who goes and who stays.

Wilson told reporters that "I think Congress should establish a definite standard. I'm not in favor of letting the President and the Secretary of Defense write the standards." He added he thought that was the function of Congress.

The Iowan said he hoped to have his amendment ready today. He voted against the draft bill in committee and he is still undecided whether he will support it on the floor even if his amendment is adopted.

Meantime, Republican leaders were ready to clap the lid on the first of several explosive civil rights amendments when the Senate convenes today.

Armed Services Chairman Gurney (R., S. D.) said he would move to table a proposal by Senator Langer (R., N. D.) to outlaw segregation in the armed services.

The motion to table would cut off debate and avoid a drawn-out fight by Southern Democrats that would delay the bill.

Langer has six others, all applying to President Truman's civil rights recommendations to the armed forces. But they too are in line for shelving.

The Senate is expected to approve the draft bill this week, but a final vote before late Tuesday or Wednesday appears unlikely.

Senator Richard B. Russell (D., Ga.), and Burnet R. Maybank (D., S. C.), refused to drop their fight to write in "voluntary segregation" of draftees but said they would not filibuster against the bill if they lose.

The Russell-Maybank* proposal faces almost certain defeat. It would require the armed services to segregate by races all men who request it.

U. S. Asked to State Program for Peace

By the United Press

The National Council Against Conscription yesterday asked the State Department to say whether it has a program which, if accepted by Russia, would "lead to peace."

Renewing its fight against pending draft legislation, the council released a statement saying that, until such a program is announced, many people "here and abroad will believe America is set upon war." It described passage of the draft as a "provocative" act that might lead to war.

The statement was signed by Scientist Albert Einstein; Joy E. Morgan, editor of the National Education Association's Journal; Joseph Fichter, master of the Ohio Grange; Rabbi Ferdinand Isserman of the Central Conference of American Rabbis; Dr. A. J. Carlson, University of Chicago scientist; Bishop Charles Brashares of the Methodist Church, Des Moines, and Dr. George C. Buttrick, pastor of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York City.

Truman Held Making Gains In Competition for Delegates

By the United Press

President Truman has a chance now to pick up some more instructed delegates to the Democratic national convention through his now frankly political western tour.

A leading Connecticut Democrat said yesterday that favorable crowd reaction along the President's route would influence his State's party convention late this week to instruct its 20 delegates to back Mr. Truman for the Presidential nomination.

He said a few of the other States which have yet to pick their national convention delegations, might be similarly affected if the President's swing—previously scheduled as non-political but no longer even a pretense of that—begins to show tangible evidence of an upturn in the Chief Executive's political fortunes.

Otherwise, they would be expected to do as so many States already have done and send "uninstructed" delegations to the nominating convention at Philadelphia July 12.

Regardless of what the few remaining States should do along that line however, they wouldn't be enough to guarantee Mr. Truman a first-ballot nomination.

The latest United Press count shows only 308 votes formally "pledged" to Mr. Truman. There will be 1234 delegate votes in the convention and it will take a minimum of 618 to win. And there are only 206 more delegate votes to be decided.

Even if all those remaining delegations were instructed for Mr. Truman, which is considered unlikely, they wouldn't be enough to automatically hand him the nomination.

Political observers here believe, however, that if the President shows signs of working up some voter enthusiasm on his Western swing it will help him win over the big blocs of "uninstructed" delegations such as New York, Illinois and Pennsylvania.

Sunday newspapers here expressed forebodings over the killing.

Jews Protest Ban On Cyprus Group

Despite Gestures

Some Expect Red Setback In Finn Vote

By the United Press

High diplomatic officials predicted yesterday that the Communists may suffer a setback in the Finnish general elections next month.

They said they probably would lose some seats in the Diet, despite a unique 75-million-dollar "give-away" by Soviet Russia in an attempt to bolster the party's popularity.

In what was regarded as bold preelection strategy Russia last week announced it was forgiving half of Finland's remaining war reparations which total about 150 million dollars.

Diplomats here, who foresee a limited "back-to-normalcy" swing in Finland's first general elections in three years, predicted the stratagem would fall short of offsetting the trend.

Wiley Assails Communists

eran leaders would meet here tomorrow to confer on "ways of killing the bill."

In New York John Gates, editor of the Daily Worker, retorted that Senator Wiley's open letter was "that of a man in a rage."

In a letter replying to the Senator's charges, the Communist editor said Wiley was in a rage because he "cannot endure political opposition and exposure."

"You are deceiving the country . . . and you know it," Gates said in his letter. "You show contempt for the American people when you shut off testimony after only four days in which to deliberate a measure which will revolutionize the entire legal system of civil liberties in the United States."

Wiley began his letter to the Daily Worker editors by saying that "ordinarily I would not even consider writing to you or making these comments." But he went on to say that "your sheet" undoubtedly relies on the fact that "very rarely do public officials even bother to 'honor' it by commenting upon its nefarious activities."

Then he made these point-by-point charges:

Communist contempt of Congress—"We bent over backwards to give the opposition to the Mundt bill the overwhelming proportion of available time. You acknowledged our courtesy by contempt of all the processes of republican government. You sought to capitalize on the public forum possibilities of the committee hearings by issuing long, windy and useless statements of generalities actually unrelated to the Mundt bill and merely echoing the Communist Party line."

Devious red propaganda—"You sought to dupe liberals, progressives and all other individuals who are not personally Communists into believing that the United States Congress was secretly attempting to foist some type of totalitarian regime upon our country." He accused the Communists of using "every Hitlerian propagandistic device in particular wholesale name calling," against committee members who asked them questions.

Exploitation of minority feelings—"Your party stands accused on its record of seeking to inflame minority groups against the Congress and our American way of life, seeking to exploit grievances, real or imagined."

Provocation of incidents—"The Communist Party stands accused on its record of seeking to provoke mob 'incidents' for publicity value in connection with the Mundt bill . . ."

Name calling against opponents of Reds—"You have called the enemies of communism warmongers although you yourselves are the greatest contributing factors to ill will, between the American and Russian peoples and therefore a contributing factor toward the terrible possibility of a horrible third world war."

Lake Success, N. Y., June 6 (NYHT).—A bitter protest against Britain's decision to bar Jews of military age from leaving Cyprus refugee camps for Israel during the Holy Land truce was made public here today by Israeli representatives to the United Nations on behalf of the central committee of Cyprus detainees.

The protest, including a warning of noncooperation, came as the Security Council awaited word from its mediator, Count Folke Bernadotte, of Sweden, on the results of his week-end efforts to obtain agreement to a four-week truce.

The Council has already been told by Count Bernadotte that the question of immigration was "alone obstructing agreement" to a Jewish-Arab cease-fire; so today's protest took on unusual significance.

The Council will meet at 3:30 p. m. tomorrow in the hope that it will have some word from Count Bernadotte, to whom it has given a free hand to interpret the U. N. truce plan "in a way which he may deem to be correct."

Hoffman Says Firm Stand Can Stop Reds

South Bend, Ind., June 6 (AP).—Paul G. Hoffman, administrator of the Economic Cooperation Administration, said today Stalin will not plunge the world into war "if the free nations stand together and are prepared militarily to meet aggression."

Hoffman delivered the commencement address at the 103d graduating exercises at Notre Dame University, which awarded him an honorary degree of doctor of laws.

"It is obvious to all," he said, "that a ruthless dictatorship—probably the most powerful the world has ever seen—is launched on a well-thought-out program of destroying all free institutions."

"Stalin's objectives have been as clearly spelled out in many Communist documents as were Hitler's in 'Mein Kampf,'" the ECA chief asserted.

Hoffman said that "there is a clear-cut division between the barbaric dictatorship of Stalin . . . and the free western civilization developed through 20 centuries of Christianity . . ."

"The free peoples of western civilization are at last discovering a firm, sound basis for united action. We are joined now not by mere expediency but by fundamental morality," he went on.

"Hitler would never have marched in 1939, in my opinion, if he had arrayed against him the united strength of the world's free nations," he said, "nor will Stalin march today if the free nations stand together and are prepared militarily to meet aggression."

Honorary degrees of doctor of law were also conferred on the Most Rev. Richard J. Cushing, archbishop of Boston, and Dr. Roy J. Defarrari, Washington, D. C., secretary general of the Catholic University of America.

The honorary degree of doctor of science was awarded Vincent J. Schaefer, Schenectady, N. Y., research chemist. An honorary doctorate of laws was awarded posthumously to William J. Corbett, Chicago businessman and former member of the board of lay trustees at Notre Dame who died May 26.

Upon arriving at London, Tassoyev was taken to a "mysterious" apartment at 1623 Bishops King rd., Tass said, where he was worked over by the British every day in an effort to persuade him to stay in Britain.

On May 6, the dispatch added, the officed escaped and ran into the streets shoutng he was a Soviet colonel and had been kidnaped in Bremen.

A policeman took him to jail, Tass said. He was kept there until May 20 and "repeatedly beaten up," it added.

Tass demanded that British and Americans responsible for the kidnapng be punished.

West Expects Soviet Trouble On Germany

By The Associated Press

Western diplomats look for new trouble with Russia, this time over impending moves by the western powers to unify their zones of Germany and fit their production into the European recovery program.

Expected Soviet countermoves may be indicated this week following publication today of western nation agreements completed a few days ago in London. They are up for final approval in the United States, Britain, France and the Low Countries.

Some American official experts on Russia believe the Soviets may renew their efforts to force the western powers out of Berlin and make that city headquarters for a body which would claim to be an "all-German" government.

The Communist-controlled Berliner Zeitung Saturday published an open threat from an official of the "German People's Congress."

The Soviets have been hampered in their propaganda attacks thus far by lack of adequate official information on the London agreements, which will be available with today's release of the 1200-word official report.

U. N. Exclusion Of Soviet Held Road to War

Williamsburg, Va., June 6 (AP).—Reorganization of the United Nations without Russia could only lead to another war, Senator Leverett Saltonstall (R., Mass.) said today.

The world's hopes for peace lie in the terms of the U. N. charter as it now exists, he told graduates of the College of William and Mary in a commencement address.

"It is far better to be talking it out within the framework of the charter than shooting it out outside its covenants," the New England Senator declared.

Immigration Issue Virtually Wrecks Palestine Truce Move

Arabs Blame Jews For Truce Deadlock

Cairo, June 6 (AP).—Negotiations for a four-week truce in Palestine hit a snag tonight and were reported in danger of failing.

A dispatch from Amman, where Count Folke Bernadotte conferred with King Abdullah, said the truce agreement appeared to be cracking up. It had been accepted in principle last Wednesday by both the Jews and Arabs.

[A United Press dispatch from Amman quoted a usually reliable source as saying that Bernadotte might set noon Greenwich mean time (8 a. m. Monday EDT) as the start for a cease-fire period in Palestine. The report was not confirmed.]

The Arabs blamed the deadlock on Jewish insistence that immigration into the Holy Land be allowed to continue and that the Tel Aviv highway be kept open to supply Jerusalem.

Bernadotte, the United Nations mediator in Palestine, was grimfaced and noncommittal following his talks with Abdullah and Trans-Jordan Foreign Minister Fawzi Pasha Malki in Amman.

Says Date Moved Back

Ralph Bunche of the United Nations Secretariat indicated the negotiations were not going well when he told newsmen: "We still have hope." A neutral source in Amman said the target date for getting the truce operative had been moved back until Thursday.

Bernadotte's party left tonight for Cairo. The Swedish count conferred with Jewish leaders in Haifa this morning after journeying from Beirut, the Lebanese capital. He came to Amman from Haifa.

Abdullah said that after the Arabs accepted the truce in principle "some obstacles were encountered which made it impractical."

Claim Entire Force Trapped

The attention of both Arabs and Jews was focused on the fighting on Tel Aviv's approaches. The Jews claim to have a fifth of the entire Egyptian force of some 5000 men trapped at Isdud, 23 miles south of Tel Aviv.

The Egyptians gave no hint that their troops were in trouble there. Instead they told of widespread reconnaissance operations by Egyptian planes and mobile forces on the southern approaches of Tel Aviv.

King Abdullah's Legionnaires hurled 100 shells today into Jewish-held districts of modern Jerusalem after Israeli infantry made another unsuccessful attempt to storm the old city's Zion gate.

The Jewish attack was abandoned after three hours of close quarter fighting.

Ecuador Votes For President; Plaza Favored

Guayaquil, Ecuador, June 6 (U.P.).—Ecuador voters went to the polls today to choose a successor for President Jose M. Velasco Ibarra, ousted last August by a coup.

Political observers gave U. S.-educated Galo Plaza, 42-year-old former ambassador to Washington, a slight advantage over Manuel Elicio Flor, 54. Gen. Alberto Enriquez was a third candidate.

Incomplete returns from six Guayaquil precincts gave Plaza 11,829 votes; Enriquez, 10,563; Dr. Flor, 4250. Scattered provincial returns showed Plaza leading Enriquez by a large margin.

Plaza is the candidate of his own National Democratic movement. Flor, nominee of the Conservative Party, draws strong support from the Catholic church.

Enriquez, a former dictator, is the candidate of the regular Liberal and Socialist organizations.

Plaza attended California, Maryland and Georgetown universities in the United States.

Two Britons Dash to Paris

Gaulle's chief advisers, told an audience at Narbonne, France, that the pact is a threat to French security.

Pravda commentator G. Zhukov said that "The secret bargain concluded in London, in opposition to most important international agreements, will never be recognized . . . by the German people."

De Gaulle's aide said acceptance of the London proposals seems "scarcely possible."

Schuman Faces Critical Week

Paris, June 6 (U.P.).—Premier Robert Schuman today faces one of the most critical weeks in the life of his six-month-old government. The General Assembly is due to debate France's role in the London conference on Germany and subsidies for Catholic church schools.

Probably the most critical test will come Tuesday, when the assembly begins its foreign affairs debate.

Abdullah Flays Policy Of U. S. and Russia

Amman, June 6 (U.P.).—King Abdullah of Trans-Jordan today bitterly criticized both United States and Russian policy on Palestine.

The two countries, he said, had ulterior motives in supporting the Jews.

"This has become a problem affecting not only Palestine but all of Asia and America," Abdullah said.

"It might easily lead to a third world war.

"The United States and Russia are both playing a dangerous game for their own reasons."

Russia Right, Wallace Says

New York, June 6 (AP).—Henry A. Wallace said today Russia rightfully opposes a United States policy in Germany which "would restore to power the very same men and groups" that created the Nazi war machine.

In a speech over the NBC network, the third party presidential candidate accused "Wall Street trusts" and "Pentagon militarists" of blocking the road to a peaceful settlement of the German question. They, he said, "are gambling with America's future and for their private profits and glory."

He characterized present American policy—which he said was indorsed by leaders of both the Republican and Democratic parties—as an attempt to build up western Germany, first economically and then militarily, against the Soviets.

Wallace urged a return to the pricinples agreed upon at Potsdam for making peace with Germany. But, he said, "the reactionary big businessmen who really make American policy in Germany are opposed to those principles . . . I charge that through the restoration of the German cartel and monopoly system, they are conspiring to enlarge their holdings and establish themselves in a rebuilt, remilitarized, Ruhr Valley heavy industry."

His Kin Investigated, Candidate Taylor Says

Providence, R. I., June 6 (U.P.).—Senator Glen Taylor of Idaho charged today that his relatives are "being investigated simply because I am a third party member."

Taylor told the founding convention of the third party in Rhode Island that "the private life of my brother Paul (of San Jose, Calif.) is being looked into because I'm in this party."

Taylor did not say who was doing the investigating.

Coal Pact Must Fit Law, Operators Say

By the United Press

Soft coal industry spokesmen said yesterday, on the eve of new negotiations with John L. Lewis, that any wage contract they sign will have to conform fully with the Taft-Hartley Act.

Operators representing all the major producing areas meet with Lewis and his United Mine Workers negotiators at 10 a. m. to start court-ordered talks on a wage pact to replace the one which expires June 30.

Federal Justice T. Alan Goldsborough brought about the meeting by granting an injunction to Robert Denham, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, requiring Lewis to deal with the Southern Coal Producers Association. Lewis bowed to the edict, and today all the producers, including the Southerners, hope to get their first glance at the mine leader's new contract demands.

Major Issue Stated

Lewis already has said the major issue will be for active operation of the miners' welfare and retirement fund. He is expected, for example, to demand that the producers' present 10-cent-a-ton contribution to the fund be increased.

He also is expected to ask for shorter working hours, a general wage increase, and a rise in the $100 annual vacation pay.

Clauses on the welfare fund, the existing union shop and dues checkoff are among those affected by the Taft-Hartley law. One industry spokesman told the United Press that great care will have to be exercised in writing the new contract "so that details of such provisions conform to the letter of the law."

The UMW disclosed meanwhile that all of the $4,564,449 left in the coal industry's 1946 miners health and welfare fund will be spend by the end of this month.

Lewis warned that unless the 1947 fund is made available, "it will cause a major convulsion throughout the industry and will enflame the mining population with white anger."

Moody To Participate

The Southerners will be represented today by Association President Joseph E. Moody.

Reopening of the conferences climaxes almost a year of Lewis's losing fight against the Taft-Hartley law. He boasted last July 7 when he signed the current wage agreement that it was the best in collective bargaining history and was achieved "in spite of the Taft slave law."

But since then, and because of the law or his own stand on issues with respect to the act, Lewis has bolted the AFL, been sued for $250,000 damages by a coal company, paid fines for himself and the union of $1,420,000, and is currently defending himself against an operators' suit on the eligibility of miners for pensions, two mine workers' suit for discrimination against them, and a National Labor Relations Board complaint of unfair labor charges for refusal to bargain.

Dozen Decisions Lost

Lewis's District 50 has lost a dozen decisions in cases before the Labor Board because of his refusal to sign non-Communist affidavits and the union cannot bring unfair charges against employers.

4 City Pupils Win Prizes For Posters

HOWARD W. SCOTT
Displays Prize-winning Poster

Four prizes and four honorable mentions in the American Automobile Association national traffic safety poster contest were won by District public school students.

The top winner was 16-year-old Howard W. Scott, for whom winning competitions has become almost routine. Scott, who lives at 1305 South Capitol st., won a $20 first prize in the elementary school division for a poster illustrating the rule "Watch for Turning Cars."

Scott, who previously won awards in art competitions sponsored by the District Savings Bond organization, The Washington Post, the Times-Herald and the Evening Star, was one of 4119 contestants from public, parochial and private schools.

Sixty prizes were awarded by the AAA, and the best designs will be reproduced by the organization for distribution to elementary schools throughout the country.

Scott, who is planning to be a commercial artist, is in grade 9B at the Randall Junior High School. He is the son of the Rev. Walter L. Scott, assistant pastor of St. Paul's Baptist Church, and Mrs. Thelma Scott. A native of Washington, he began sketching and drawing about seven years ago.

Other local winners were John W. Milligan, 18, 4231 Meade st. ne., second prize; James Jiles, 13, 482 E st. sw., third prize; and Barbara Penney, 13, 711 Highland ave. nw., third prize.

Honorable mention recipients from the District were William Gallerizzo, 18, 2010 4th st. ne.; Lenore Hale, 13, 5504 4th st. nw.; Robert Henry, 14, 319½ F st. sw.; Margaret Preftakes, 14, 7005 9th st. nw.

Clark Says Rail Seizure Was Legal

By the United Press

Attorney General Tom C. Clark said yesterday that President Truman was within his legal rights when he seized the Nation's railroads last month to prevent a strike.

He released a petition which he will file tomorrow with the Federal District Court asking it to override three rail unions which seek dismissal of the Government's suit for an antistrike injunction.

A hearing is set for June 10 on the Government's petition for the injunction. The temporary restraining order forbidding a strike, now in effect, expires June 11.

The unions involved are the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Enginemen and Firemen, and the Switchmen's Union of North America.

CIO Doubles Rolls in South

By the United Press

The CIO reported yesterday that it has doubled its membership in the South during the last two years.

Van A. Bittner, head of the CIO organizing committee, said the southern organizing drive begun in June, 1946 has paid off both in increased union membership and in decreased hostility toward organized labor.

"There were 400,000 CIO members in the South when we opened our membership campaign," he said. "Since then we have added more than 400,000 members and have established more than 800 new local unions."

The drive is being financed by CIO international unions, which voted one million dollars for the first year and a lesser amount for the second year. It is estimated that less than $1,500,000 has been spent thus far. Meanwhile, the rival American Federation of Labor claims its own campaign in Dixie has been more successful and less expensive.

Bittner said 22 CIO organizers and local union leaders have been beaten up since the campaign began, and "numerous efforts were made to impede our campaign by arresting our organizers on such ridiculous charges as 'distributing handbills,' 'using sound trucks' and 'soliciting union membership without a city license.'"

But, he added, "there has been a definite improvement in the civil rights situation."

Court Procedures Improved Through Advice of Laymen

Benefits of laymen's assistance in improving local court procedures were stressed here last night in a panel discussion over Station WINX.

Participants included Philip L. Graham, publisher of The Washington Post; B. M. McKelway, editor of The Evening Star; Elmer E. Kayser, dean of university students at George Washington University, all members of the Laymen's Committee on Improving the Administration of Justice; Bolitha J. Laws, Chief Justice of the District Court for Washington, and Bryce Rea, jr., Washington attorney, who served as chairman of the program.

Justice Laws, describing the District Bar Association's interest in formation of the committee, said laymen as the principals in the drama—as litigants, jurors and witnesses—had a decided interest in court procedures and should be consulted.

The purpose of forming the committee was twofold, he said. "First, we wanted laymen to know that for the past 10 years judges and lawyers have been improving conditions, and secondly we wanted the layman's help because the layman's confidence in the courts is necessary."

The jurist credited the committee with a large part of the success in getting Congress to authorize a new courthouse for Washington, and said the committee has worked with the architect to secure better accommodations for witnesses and jurors in the new structure.

McKelway said, "Of the three independent branches of our Government, the average citizen probably stands in most awe of the courts, or judiciary. They mean trouble to him, and while he does not hesitate to tell the President or Congress what to do, he leaves the courts alone.

"This is not a healthy condition. The courts can learn many things from the layman aside from the technicalities of law," he said.

Graham, describing the committee's work, said, "We found specific things troubling witnesses. First, waiting conditions — about which much can't be done at present, pending a new courthouse. Second, pay—and there is a question about whether it should be raised, and third, delay—much of which is due to the court doing such a big volume of business catching up with the back docket."

Graham said one complaint witnesses made was about the delaying tactics of defense lawyers, to which Justice Laws replied, "for the last three years, particularly in criminal court, continuations have been granted only when a valid reason is given the judge."

Kayser, describing the work of a subcommittee he headed to study selection and instruction of jurors, said, "We have a very definite feeling that justice is not something that occurs in a vacuum, but occurs against a social background. There would be no finer training in citizenship than teaching children in our schools about jury service, its rights and obligations.

"The ordinary citizen," Kayser continued, "comes to serve as a juror with very little knowledge of it. We thought he should be instructed beforehand, so he could approach his duty with some modicum of kowledge and his sense of fear would be taken away."

Justice Laws said this need has been recognized, and there is now a program to give preliminary instruction. Work on revision of a booklet to be given new jurors is now in progress, he said, and a booklet for grand jurors is also being prepared.

Trowel of '86 Used On '48 Cornerstone

The Washington Post
DR. F. S. BUSCHMEYER places trowel of cement on cornerstone as Dr. William F. Frazier, who gave address, looks on

A trowel used in the laying of the cornerstone of Mount Pleasant Congregational Church 62 years years ago was used yesterday to seal the cornerstone of the new Westmoreland Congregational Church.

The new church, which is sponsored by the Mount Pleasant Church, is being erected at Massachusetts and Western aves. nw. When it is completed, about the first of next year, the Mount Pleasant Congregation, which has been worshiping at 1410 Columbia rd. nw., will move to the new location.

At the ceremonies yesterday, Dr. William F. Frazier of the Board of Home Missions of the Congregational Christian Church told the congregation that there is no ground for democracy except as it rises out of the church of God.

Civil and political rights, he stated, rest on a religious foundation or have no foundation at all. Without this religious basis, Dr. Frazier declared, democracy, freedom, and all of our rights would wither away.

Dr. Fred Sherman Buschmeyer, pastor, presided at the ceremonies. Among those who placed items in the cornerstone were representatives of the architect, Leon Chatelain, sr., of Washington, the Washington Federation of Churches, members of the church, the president of the Westmoreland Citizens Association, the board of deacons, the building committee, the church board of education, and the Rev. Edmund R. Strait, assistant pastor.

Silver Spring Dedicates Fire House

A cornerstone, containing a history of the Silver Spring Volunteer Fire Department, yesterday was placed in the department's new, practically completed branch firehouse at Four Corners, Md.

Several hundred persons attended the cornerstone placing and dedication of the new brick engine house, which was designed to provide better fire service in its section of Montgomery County.

Speakers at the ceremony included: William J. Jouvenal, former president of the fire department, who pushed the cornerstone into place; County Commissioners Brooke Johns and Oliver W. Youngblood; and Capt. Joseph B. Nolte of the Silver Spring police substation.

The branch firehouse went into use February 26 when an engine was moved into the still uncompleted building. It now has two engines. Only a few finishing touches remain before the building is completed.

The building was erected under the general supervision of a building committee consisting of Victor H. Bender, W. James Widmeyer, Loren Lee Murray, Clay V. Davis, Charles E. Deffinbaugh, Lawrence L. Swindell, Henry J. Dietle, Leo Breen, George W. Brandt, Dana B. Johannes, John Gilson, Earle Culver and Howard Larcombe.

The Silver Spring Elks Boys' Band and the Silver Spring Boys' Band played for yesterday's ceremonies.

Marylander on Plane Missing in Pacific

S/Sergt. Joseph F. Whalen of Eastport, Md., was a passenger on a missing plane for which the Army has been searching in the Hawaiian Islands since Thursday, the United Press reported from Honolulu yesterday.

Also reported aboard the plane, which the Army said it finally had abandoned hope of finding, were S/Sergt. Arthur J. Hanna of Coronado, Calif., a passenger, and the pilot, M/Sergt. William Morrison of Vallejo, Calif.

Dr. Palmer Named Chief of Training For Civil Defense

Appointment of Dr. Archie Palmer, 3321 Runnymeade pl. nw., as chief of the training section, Office of Civil Defense Planning, was announced yesterday by Director Russell J. Hopley.

Hopley also announced the appointment of William B. Blanchet, 2622 Newton st. ne., as assistant chief of the State and local Government branch of the OCDP.

Dr. Palmer, married and the father of two, formerly was president of the University of Chattanooga. Blanchet is former assistant city attorney of San Antonio, Tex.

Hopley, on leave from his position as president of the Northwestern Bell Telephone Co., was named by Defense Secretary Forrestal to head the planning program.

WPIK Man Wins First Prize in 'Ham' Contest

Carl Lindberg, an officer of Station WPIK, Alexandria, and a radio "ham," yesterday won top-prize for the best mobile radio unit in a competition sponsored by the Atlantic Division, American Radio Relay League.

The competition highlighted closing activities of the ARRL's first postwar convention here. Lindberg, who lives at 3019 S. Buchanan st., Fairlington, was awarded transmitting equipment.

In the organization's "transmitter hunt," Roy Buchanan of Suitland, Md., ran down the hidden transmitter, located on Columbia Island, in an hour and a half to take first place.

Tied for second and third were Chet Cunningham, 2716 Knox ter. se., president of the Washington Radio Club, and G. P. McGinnis, 5519 Roosevelt st., Bethesda. Time was 1¾ hours. They also won transmitting equipment.

More than 600 hams from Greater Washington, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware and part of New Jersey attended the convention. Radio clubs of this area were host.

Maryland Raid

State's Attorney Daniel M. Murray, jr., says that the big gambling raid just outside of Laurel was independent of the grand jury investigation of gambling in Washington. A close relationship between the two events is none the less obvious. The casino where the raid by Maryland State troopers took place had been in operation only 10 days. In other words, it opened just after the exodus of gamblers from the District because of the grand jury inquiry. Many of the 31 persons arrested as operators, employes and patrons of the gaming house are District residents. It is impossible to avoid the conclusion that the unhealthful atmosphere for gamblers in the District and the tightening up of law enforcement in adjacent Prince Georges County put a special premium on gambling operations in Howard County along the Washington-Baltimore highway.

More important than the shifting of gambling operations from one jurisdiction to another, however, is the object lesson that Maryland has given to District authorities in how to deal with lawlessness of this sort. The Rocway Towers establishment had scarcely begun to operate when it was hit a jolt that may well put all other gamblers in Howard County to flight. With this kind of enforcement, gambling and all the criminal progeny that it spawns can be quickly suppressed. Indeed, the fact that most of the big gamblers have shaken the dust of Washington from their feet since the grand jury investigation began is eloquent indication of what might be expected from conscientious and energetic enforcement of the law.

GM Wage Pattern

Walter Reuther, president of the United Automobile Workers, declares that the Ford Motor Co. can't escape adopting either the General Motors cost-of-living wage formula in coming wage negotiations or else granting flat hourly wage increases, as did Chrysler. No doubt Mr. Reuther is justified in concluding that Ford will have to follow the example of its competitors and yield to pressure for a third round of wage increases. Certainly the announcement of an advance in the price of new model Fords indicates that the company has abandoned its efforts to cut wages, even though the rise in car prices is attributed to existing high production costs.

Assuming that Mr. Reuther is a good prophet, the Ford company's choice of methods of granting third-round wage increases is highly important. For if Ford were to follow the example of General Motors by linking wage increases to changes in living costs, it would give a tremendous boost to a system of wage fixation that has already gained a large number of converts. There are, however, serious objections to indiscriminate extension of a system of this kind. Wage rates, after all, have to be adjusted with reference to the employing company's ability to pay. The profits, hence the ability to pay, of many thousands of firms operating in the United States do not, as a matter of fact, rise or fall in close conformity with changes in the general price level and living costs.

Even when prices are rising rapidly over a wide field, some industries and many individual concerns, especially the smaller, higher-cost concerns, may be hard-pressed. Hence, if the practice of raising wage rates to correspond with every increase in living costs were to become universal, many businesses would simply be forced to the wall. The formula adopted by General Motors affords a very satisfactory method of adjusting wages in that particular instance at this particular time, since the company is not being committed to pay out more than it can afford. At present the market for its output is huge and unsatisfied; if pressed, it can advance the prices of its products without danger of unduly restricting sales. But who can say how long these favorable conditions will continue. And what would happen to companies saddled with agreements to adjust wages to living costs if they should suffer a loss of business at a time of general prosperity and rising prices?

There are also some reasons why labor looks with suspicion on agreements linking changes in wages to changes in living costs. A too close correspondence would, as Mr. Reuther points out, result in the workers being "wedded to the status quo." In other words, labor would never enjoy the benefits of increases in productive efficiency and technological advances. Mr. Reuther states flatly that the UAW would not have accepted the escalator clause in the GM contract providing for cost-of-living wage adjustments without the provision for a 3-cent annual standard-of-living raise and a floor which prevents more than 5 of the 11-cent initial wage increase from being taken away, if prices drop severely.

It seems evident, therefore, that, from the viewpoint of both management and labor, cost-of-living wage adjustment formulas provide no final answer to the problem of wage adjustments. Under systems of wartime control of prices and wages it is possible and desirable to adjust wages to prices over large areas of the economy. In times like these, with prices and wages running an inflationary race, it may be possible to retard the inflationary effect of this contest by occasional agreements modeled on the GM pattern. But such agreements can only be regarded as exceptions to the general rule of wage fixation in an economy based on profit.

Cease Fire

It is evident that neither the Arabs nor the Israelis have as yet made any progress toward a meeting of minds on the basic issues in Palestine. The Israelis, having established their state, feel free to let immigrants come in freely, while the representative of the Arab Higher Committee, Mr. el-Husseini, is sticking to the Arab position that there is no such entity as the state of Israel.

Some understanding on these issues is needed before the U. N.'s cease fire order will be obeyed. A fuller understanding must then be forthcoming before any peace can succeed the four-week armistice which will come into effect as soon as the shooting has stopped. Yet the Security Council has accepted the equivocal responses to its cease fire order as equal to unconditional acceptances. They are, of course, nothing of the sort, as is shown by the continued fighting. And the Security Council, closing its eyes to the realities, has chosen to let the mediator, Count Bernadotte, use his own judgment in persuading the belligerents to lay down their arms. The action is an incredible disavowal of U. N. responsibility which will do nothing to restore its fallen prestige.

It is unusual, to say the least, for parties in armed dispute to agree upon an armistice except on the basis of a common understanding about fundamentals. We ourselves had taken it for granted that the implicit, if not explicit, basis of the cease-fire order would be the acceptance of at least the principle of partition. However, from the outset the handling of the Palestine dispute has been topsy-turvy. It may be that a meeting of minds about Palestine is more discernible on the spot than it is at Lake Success. The fighting certainly has all the appearance of jockeying for political position on the part of the Arabs. Now that Arab "face" has been saved by a little blood-shedding maybe the Arab states are arguing about the disposition of the Arab rump of Palestine, and that a deal is on the way to achievement.

Still the mediator was entitled to more support from the Security Council than a prayer. This is the view of the vice chairman of the U. N. Palestine Commission, Raul Diez de Medina of Bolivia, who, commenting on the cease-fire order, says that the commission's call upon the Security Council for an international force still has validity. Mr. Medina may yet prove correct, though the Franciscan Fathers, who have hitherto been looking after some of the holy places in Jerusalem, may do the U. N.'s job for it by enlisting the volunteer militia which Mr. Hershel Johnson proposed last October, and which the Security Council shied away from. The fright in face of what is avowedly a breach of the peace is pretty pathetic. At least the Security Council should have shown the parties to the dispute that while the issue was being passed on to Count Bernadotte, there would be no backing away from the determination to invoke the coercion articles in the Charter under Chapter VII in case of failure.

Delaying Tactics

John L. Lewis and the United Mine Workers have learned by hard experience that it does not pay to ignore court injunctions. But the promptitude with which they have submitted to the latest Goldsborough injunction to bargain with the Southern Coal Producers Association does not necessarily indicate a genuine desire to negotiate a new wage contract before the present one expires. There is, on the contrary, good reason to believe that Mr. Lewis has been playing for time by refusing to bargain with the association and actually inviting resort to the court to compel him to negotiate. The failure of the UMW to present any evidence to support its complaint that the Southern operators wish to destroy the union instead of bargaining with it lends color to Justice Goldsborough's suspicion that the break up of the wage conference by the union was a purely tactical move. At any rate, Mr. Lewis has managed to hold up negotiations since mid-May at a time when every day lost increases the chances that July 1 will find the miners without a contract.

Injunctions directed against labor unions as a means of protecting the public welfare have become a necessary evil because of the irresponsible power wielded by union leaders like John L. Lewis. However, injunctions cannot compel agreement. That fact may explain why Mr. Lewis has submitted so meekly to the last Goldsborough order. Obeying an injunction to meet with the Southern operators' representative commits him to nothing. It does not even suggest that the union was guilty of an unfair labor practice in the first instance by refusing to bargain. For that question has still to be decided by the NLRB. The present injunction is effective only until a decision on that moot issue has been reached.

While hoping for the best, therefore, the country should be prepared for a possible mine walkout in July. There is no reason to assume that Mr. Lewis has changed his hostile attitude toward the Southern operators or abandoned hopes of negotiating a separate contract with the Northern operators and then forcing the Southerners to follow that lead. His delaying tactics have the advantage of wearing down opposition without exposing union officials to penalties.

Cutting ERP

That recovery in Europe would be impeded and perhaps nullified at the start of ECA work by the Taber 25 per cent cut is increasingly clear as the dimensions of this cut are studied. For the first 12 months the sum tentatively allocated for food and fuel would amount roughly to a little over three billion dollars of the 5.3 billions of the original authorization. These items are necessary to stoke up, as it were, the working population for the task of reconstruction. They are basic recovery items which are untouchables in the nature of the privation that Europe has suffered. Recovery items proper take the form of such producers as machine tools for industry and fertilizer for agriculture. They are what are known as "multiplier" items—that is to say, items which in use add cumulatively to productivity. It would be in this category that Mr. Hoffman would have to make his savings, if the Taber economy were allowed to stand. Thus the 1.4 billion dollar slash would lop off over 50 per cent of the recovery items. Such a huge cut would clearly mean the condemnation of the program to an Operation Rathole—or, as Secretary Marshall put it, it would turn the program from a reconstruction to a relief enterprise.

If the program is to yield results, there can be no parsimony, clearly, in the use of these multiplier items. Just as important is that the money should be used wisely. The hearings in the Senate and the House brought one witness after the other who declared that the proposed authorization was a tight fit. All the more reason that the allocations should be supervised just as carefully as they are planned. This will be a problem in administration. Mr. Hoffman has said as much in the committee hearings in defense of his reluctance to give an estimate at this time for an administration budget. Pressed, he asked for 21 million dollars for 12 months, and Mr. Taber's group slashed this to 10 millions for 15 months. Such a huge reduction, if it stood, would leave ECA ill-equipped for seeing that the taxpayers' money were used to the best advantage in promoting recovery—that is to say, for realizing the purpose of the legislation and putting the ECA progressively out of business.

Freedom Of Romance

Soviet "democracy" is pointed up by Soviet refusal to let Russian wives of foreigners join their husbands. Latest example is the controversy with Chile which has brought about a diplomatic impasse with the makings of international melodrama. The Chilean ambassador to the U. S. S. R., Luis D. Cruz Ocampo, has refused to leave the Soviet Union until he can take with him his daughter-in-law, a Soviet citizen whom the Soviet government refuses to let depart. In reprisal, the Chilean government has been holding the Soviet ambassador in his embassy. Both ambassadors have been in a state of diplomatic inaction in their embassies—all because of international romance. Chile has charged the Soviet with violation of human rights and demanded that the United Nations General Assembly discuss the whole Russian bride situation at its September meeting in Paris.

Meanwhile between 200 and 300 American and 400 and 500 British former servicemen are wifeless because of the Soviet ban on Russian brides leaving the Soviet Union. Britain has repeatedly protested this situation. Dispute over it has cropped up repeatedly in U. N. commissions and committees, with Soviet delegates always vigorously opposing action—or even discussion. Nevertheless the Human Rights Commission wrote into its draft charter the principle that anyone has the right to leave any country, including his own. Thus what may prove to be one of the most basic freedoms of human beings in a rapidly contracting world—the right to live anywhere—is getting increased emphasis.

Nothing could draw this freedom more effectively to the attention of the peoples of the world than the spectacle of yearning brides and bridegrooms kept apart by a stern, heartless government. The Kremlin has not been very smart about this, we think. The issue, with its thwarted lovers' appeal, is one that people everywhere are going to keep on reading and talking about. From it, some of them, even perhaps among the Russians, may get some dangerous new ideas about freedom of romance and its attendant freedom of movement.

SEAGULLS

Though the most of speed
Must be for prey and greed,
we who watch such flying,
proof against small fish dying, only see within this one
net of sea and air and sun arches of white, parabolas of light, fountain jets feathered for delight.

Long ago Homer, too,
seeing as we do, blind, judged their flight, who knew all the god-near kind of wing and beak and claw;
and what he saw was likeness of the lord who brings the fair or bitter word,
Hermes beautiful beneath the sun
in water-skimming flight, showing how easily it can be done by him and gulls, how right.

And ever since their flying sings the promised and the golden land that always was, and sometimes springs from what is close at hand long enough for eyes to find under the skies pathways where a god still flies.

Engineer-Administrators

Your May 31 editorial, "Legislative Ouster," contains an unfortunate misstatement of fact that "most engineers" do not possess executive skill and experience.

Quite aside from the issues involved in the Reclamation Bureau controversy, the record will show that the engineering profession has contributed many outstanding executives and administrators in private industry and in Government agencies.

This unwarranted observation certainly cannot apply to such distinguished and successful engineer-executives as: Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, Administrator, Federal Works Agency; Leroy A. Wilson, recently elected president of the American Telegraph & Telephone Co.; Charles E. Wilson, president, General Electric Co., and Dr. Vannevar Bush, chairman, Research and Development Board, National Military Establishment. These men are not the exceptions which prove the rule. The list of engineers who presently fill high executive posts in industry, public utilities and Government is long and is marked with outstanding successes.

The unmistakable trend today is a recognition by large corporations and governmental bodies of the value of the scientifically trained engineer as an administrator and executive. This trend is particularly noticeable in the foreign countries struggling to recover from the effects of the late war. To improve the effectiveness of the Economic Cooperation Administration, which is to play a lead role in reconstruction of war-ravaged countries, the deputy administrator has been chosen from the engineering profession.

As a final indication of the injustice of the statement, we would call to your attention the recent survey, the Engineering Profession in Transition, which shows that more than one third of the engineers of the Nation hold administrative and executive positions.

"Art For Whose Sake?"

Despite its coy disclaimer, The Washington Post, in its editorial of May 20, uses a steppingstone of dubious origin for a specious wallow into the arts. From a position that permits sophistic retreat the artist of today is blanketed with a pall which, unfortunately for the editorial argument, also enmeshes Rembrandt, Milton, Beethoven and others who have employed idioms "which are (still) wholly unintelligible to most persons."

Undoubtedly, "it is probably fair to say that the real significance of many modern pictures . . . is apparent only to the artists who create them," but—what modern works does The Washington Post have in mind? Surely accusations of this nature have at one time even specifically been said of the paintings of Delacroix, Cezanne and Van Gogh.

Further the editorial hand-washingly indicts the contemporary artist of defaulting the popular audience. This reveals a lack of understanding of the primary uncompromisability of the arts and the history of artists. Neither Rembrandt nor Vermeer was popular and Leonardo's great genius could hardly have been recognized by the soldiers who playfully punctured with their arrows his uncast equestrian statue of Francesco Sforza, yet there were thousands of popular artists of that period whose works have passed long ago into a deserved purgatory.

It is significant that the derogations of this day's artist erupt from those who no more than superficially appreciate the artist of an earlier day. This explains the inferred repudiation of artistic tradition. Your articles on the National Gallery's recent presentation of paintings from the German museums bear this out.

Most of the defamations of twentieth century art are in the vein of the student who, on finding that acids turn blue litmus paper red, immediately proclaims to all the world that the theories of nuclear fission are a hoax and Hiroshima an ostentatious myth perpetuated by a small group of scientists to elevate themselves to an ivory tower above a bewildered public.

Is it really the artist who wears the shoe of preciosity?

Communist Drive

The Communist newspaper, New York Worker, which is the Sunday edition of the Daily Worker, has announced that the Communist Party has started a campaign to get 15,000 new American Communist members by the time of the Communist national convention in July. The new recruits are expected to come from young voters, veterans, Negroes and organized labor, and the Communist Party has openly announced its intention of seeking actual party members from the followers of Henry Wallace.

Blueprint for World Conquest, as outlined by the Communist International, leaves no doubt as to the motives of the Communists. As stated in this document, "The ultimate aim of the Communist International is to replace world capitalist economy by a world system of communism. The Communist International has declared a decisive war against the entire bourgeois world. To overthrow the bourgeoisie and create an International Soviet, the Communist International will use all means at its disposal, including force of arms." In Problems of Leninism, Stalin quoted with approval Lenin's declaration ". . . It is inconceivable that the Soviet Republic should continue to exist for a long period side by side with bourgeois states—ultimately, one or the other must conquer."

The Communists are clever and they will try every ruse to get new members for their party. It is important that every American learn what is really behind the doctrine of communism, for a well informed nation will help to make a strong America. ALICE HANCHETT.

Stock Ownership

In reference to J. A. Livingston's article of June 3 (on ownership of stocks and bonds), how about the millions of people who have life insurance policies and savings accounts backed by securities of all kinds, private and public? These folks, it seems to me, own plenty of stocks and bonds indirectly.

A. G. GILLESPIE.

Mr. Gillespie is correct. There are many indirect owners of securities. But the New York Stock Exchange was referring, by allusion if not specifically, to the number of direct security-holders, and puts the number around 15 to 16 millions. That, to my way of thinking, is not susceptible of statistical validation. J. A. LIVINGSTON.

Athletes Abroad

The Olympic games have always been an invaluable opportunity for healthy young representatives of one country to meet others from all over the world. These athletes are authorized to make no political or commercial commitments, yet their association in the past has always contributed at least in a small measure to some degree of international understanding.

Perhaps the present move for us to boycott the games stems from no evil in the games themselves but rather from the people we select to represent us and the manner in which they are chosen.

It was through no innate fault in the Olympics that we could not ourselves choose our own hockey team in the last games. Nor is the current impending disgrace to American sport any more attributable to Olympic error. I refer to the notorious lack of sportsmanship of one of our American athletes now abroad, Mrs. Pat Canning Todd.

It was less than two years ago that this tennis player raised a petulant cry against the authorities who had selected the American Wightman tennis team. Nothing came of her charges, save the general discredit she brought upon herself. And now, in France, she is at it again. On May 27, when she was scheduled to play a match against a French woman in the French International Championships in Paris, she walked off the court. As defending champion, she wanted to play on the center court. The tournament officials had planned for someone else to play there. Mrs. Todd refused to play unless she could have her way.

Let's not blame poor relations in international sport on a few ill-advised, selfish individuals.

St. Marys Schools

The recent request of the board of education, backed up by hundreds of taxpaying citizens, for funds with which to modernize the educational system of St. Marys County, Md., has brought to light some peculiar ideas and many disagreements.

In St. Marys County the birth per year have risen from 200 in 1939 to 800 in 1948. We are therefore pouring into the educational hopper four times as many children each year as our buildings were planned for. Even if the birth rate tapers off in years to come, the present child population of this county is out of all proportion to the educational facilities of the entire county.

While the pressure against the schoolhouse doors has been building up like a lake behind a dam, our schools and their equipment have been wearing out, first through the neglect caused by wartime shortages, then because inflation and material and labor shortages have made it hard to catch up.

Some small headway has been made in overcoming the gross inequalities of teachers salaries in line with national trends. But now comes the new crisis in school buildings and equipment. Right now, 85 per cent of all public school buildings need major remodeling to remove health and safety hazards. And we are not building enough new school buildings to keep up with current needs, to say nothing about catching up for those we didn't build during the war years, or in St. Marys County the entire past quarter-century.

School construction expenditures for 1948 are less than in 1939 with building costs twice as high! That means we are not now holding our own . . . we are falling behind. R. B. COE.

THE AMERICAN PEOPLE: A STUDY IN NATIONAL CHARACTER; by Geoffrey Gorer. (Norton, $3.)

Mr. Gorer, an Englishman, has, I suspect, come as close as anybody to defining the genius of modern American civilization. It is, he tells us, merely the grandiose enlargement of the genius of the American family, and the key to the American character is to be found in the subordinate role assigned to the father in the normal family constitution. This discovery is in itself scarcely new. About 115 years ago Count Alexis de Tocqueville noted that in the United States paternal authority had almost ceased to exist. He ascribed it to the general leveling of conditions to be observed in almost all phases of life, and was hopeful enough to suppose that the loss of awe and respect in children for fathers would be requited by the growth of a "more intimate and more affectionate" relationship. But Mr. Gorer, who examines the question in the light of anthropological science and with some help from Freudian psychology, reaches a somewhat different conclusion. In the United States, as in Europe, he finds, the father remains the symbol of authority and discipline. The difference is that the European imagination embraces the symbol, where the American rejects it. This accounts for European reverence of the state, which is, of course, a mere projection of the Father Image; and thus there is always danger that the ancient patria potestas may be revived in the form of political absolutism or dictatorship. The American, however, remains in a condition of chronic rebellion against authority, and this is why Mr. Gorer believes, that although there is always some possibility here of anarchy and violence, there is none that Americans will ever accept fascism or communism or any other form of totalitarian society.

Mr. Gorer's explanation of this psychology of rebellion is at any rate ingenious. He derives it from the circumstances that all white Americans are descendants of immigrants. In immigrant families the father has difficulty in adapting himself to a radically changed environment, and tends to cling to his hereditary habits and ways of thought. The children, however, are eager and determined to accept the social patterns that surround them. Thus the revolt against the father begins in the second generation and is continued through all subsequent generations. But the case of the immigrant mother is somewhat different. The fact that her ways and speech might be as foreign and the father's could not affect her children's biological dependence on her. Therefore, she "could not be rejected as the father had been; and so the mother became the dominant parent of the American family almost as it were by default, rather than by any demands on her part for excessive privilege or influence."

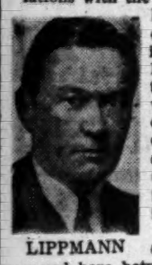
Since the father could not oblige his children to conform to his traditional norms of behavior, it became necessary for the mother to inculcate a kind of morality by giving or withholding her love and approval as the occasion seemed to demand. This function was subsequently supplemented and to some extent superseded by that of the schoolma'am. Together, says Mr. Gorer, the influences of mother and schoolma'am explain the peculiarly feminine nature of the American conscience. As far as girls are concerned, this is an advantage, and it accounts, Mr. Gorer believes, for the superior poise and assurance of American women. But among boys and men it produces a kind of ambivalence. The desire to win the mother's approval is accompanied by the desire to escape from her interference. Hence the necessity of spheres of activity in which American men can rid themselves for a time of the "encapsulated mother" that each must carry in his conscience and such spheres, it seems, are provided by business and politics.

Mr. Gorer undertakes to explain the American course in world affairs in the light of the feminine conscience. America, as he observes, has two familiar icons. One of them is Uncle Sam, the despised and rejected Father Image, who represents the Government "in its most unpleasant and interfering aspects." The other is the large bosomed and matronly Goddess of Liberty, who stands for "the Land of Opportunity, yielding her favors to those who are industrious, energetic and ingenious enough to deserve them." Americans, Mr. Gorer tells us, feel no identification with their Government and persist in regarding it as an alien institution to be obeyed grudgingly and criticized bitterly. This attitude, it seems, is shared even by members of the Government, especially those in Congress, and there is a tendency to assume that a similar lack of sympathy exists between other peoples and their governments. What Americans really demand of other nations is to be loved and admired by them, and any decline of American popularity abroad is viewed as an immediate threat to peace. At the same time it is necessary to the self-esteem of Americans that they turn every situation to their advantage and profit. Thus the effort of Americans to be at the same time hard-boiled businessmen, asking no quarter and giving none, and also "kind simple guys who just want to be liked" is both perplexing and alarming to foreigners. This contradictory behavior which foreigners, says Mr. Gorer, unjustly call hypocrisy, is actually what Americans mean by their "idealism," and is the natural expression of the feminine conscience. "Idealism," says Mr. Gorer, is merely the voice of the American mother or schoolma'am prescribing rules of conduct for others which she does not feel obliged to follow herself.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

An Estimate



LIPPMANN

WITH American rearmament assured by decisive majorities in Congress, a new phase in our relations with the Soviet Union is beginning. The critical question is how the Kremlin will react to the prospect with which, as a direct consequence of the coup d'etat in Czechoslovakia, it is now confronted.

The meaning of what has happened here between March and June must be plain—there are many indications that it is plain—to Stalin and the Russian general staff, even if it is not yet fully understood by all the members of the Politburo. As of March this country was already capable of striking severe blows deep inside the Soviet Union. But it had not mobilized the reserves it has in its stockpiles, nor taken the me ures to replenish and enlarge its reserves for a sustained and increasingly severe assault. Measures have now been adopted, assuming as we may that Congress will also vote the draft, which mean that month by month the American striking force will grow more powerful.

THUS MONTH by month the balance of military power will become more and more unfavorable to the Soviet Union. For while the Red Army is still by all odds the most powerful military force in the Eurasian continent, it cannot advance anywhere without provoking a war with the United States. For such a war the time required by this country to mobilize for severe reprisals is being reduced, the power to continue and intensify the reprisals is being increased.

Therefore, time being against them, if the rulers of Russia intend to react to the situation by military measures, they will not wait until American mobilization and rearmament are completed. All military power is relative, and in the present situation the Red Army as an instrument for the conquest or domination of Europe is deteriorating. It is still capable of overrunning the nearby countries of western Europe and the Middle East. But the cost of such an adventure is certain, is known, and is prohibitive. For the Red Army is incapable of defending Russian territory against destructive attack, and it is altogether impotent for a serious attack against continental United States.

FOR THESE reasons, which I believe are controlling and compelling, it is in the highest degree probable that the so-called "peace offensive" is not mere propaganda, that is to say exclusively an attempt to confuse and divert public opinion in Europe and America. No doubt the Kremlin would be delighted if it could cause us to suspend rearmament and lose interest in the European Recovery Program. But Stalin is no fool, and never has been, and however twisted and distorted may be the political intelligence he receives, the adoption of the American military program is a fact which he and his military advisers are bound to understand.

It is, therefore, highly probable that the peace offensive is primarily an attempt to bargain—to give up as little as possible and to get in return as much as possible. In all bargaining of this kind there is, of course, insincerity, bluff, and propaganda. A man who offers $100 in a horse trade, hoping to get the horse for $125, though he is prepared to give $150, is no doubt insincere, is bluffing, is conducting propaganda. But if he really wants the horse, he is not merely a propagandist; he is a horse trader.

NOW in my view the real question is not whether the peace offensive is propaganda. It is whether the Kremlin has decided that it must have peace or that it must risk a war. The answer to that question will not be found by studying the writings of Marx, Lenin and Stalin, or by elaborating theories about the Soviet mentality. The answer will be given objectively by events which will take place within the next few months, almost certainly within the next year.

If for any reason the Soviets do not want to negotiate a peace settlement, they will take overt military action in the fairly near future to counteract the American military program. If they do not act, if the Red Army continues to stand still while American military power mounts, then it will mean that the Kremlin has decided to negotiate a modus vivendi, making the best bargain it can get.

Eisenhower, 80 Others Urge House Vote on School-Aid Bill

By The Associated Press

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and 80 other prominent persons urged, yesterday that the House vote on the Federal-aid-to-education bill.

They signed a telegram to House Speaker Martin (R., Mass.), taking note that the Senate has passed the bill, but that the House has not acted and that time is running out.

The message said:

"The world conflict between democracy and communism is intense and real. Our democracy can win the idealogical battle only if we implement our ideals and become more democratic here at home.

"The cost of the program—300 million dollars—is insignificant in comparison with the total expense for national defense and the European Recovery Program.

"The Congress is mobilizing every human and material resource for any eventualties of peace or war . . . it cannot afford to neglect the quality of the Nation's manpower."

The pending bill would provide 300 million dollars annually in Federal funds for distribution among the States in ratio to their educational need and effort.

Signers include:

General Eisenhower, who will become president of Columbia University tomorrow; Charles Francis Adams of Boston, former Secretary of the Navy; Ellis Arnall, former Governor of Georgia; E. Manchester Boddy, publisher of the Los Angeles News; Wright Bryan, editor of the Atlanta Journal.

Matter Of Fact

By Stewart Alsop

Britain's Palestine Policy

LONDON—There have been hints and portents before this, but it can now be stated on excellent authority that something of vital importance has happened here very recently. The British cabinet has decided henceforth to use British influence and British energies to bring about an understanding between the new state of Israel and Trans-Jordan's King Abdullah. This radical change in British policy makes possible (though by no means certain) both a settlement of the Palestine tragedy and the healing of the menacing breach between the United States and Britain, which has arisen out of the Palestine issue.

Until this decision was taken, British Palestine policy was made exclusively by British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin. The general British reaction to Bevin's policy was recently summed up by one of Bevin's stanchest supporters, who remarked, "Everyone knows that Ernie's making a proper muck of it, but everyone's a hundred per cent behind him." This remark seems at this distance almost equally applicable to President Harry S. Truman's handling of American Palestine policy. At any rate, within the last couple of weeks the terrible risks involved in a bitter break between Britain and the United States on the Palestine issue have suddenly become clear here, as they seem to be becoming clear in the United States.

For this reason, the Bevin policy of trying for a settlement on the lines of the now hopelessly unrealistic Morrison-Grady report has been quietly shelved. Moreover, Palestine policy is now no longer made by Bevin alone, but by the whole British cabinet, where the influence of Sir Stafford Cripps, who is deeply conscious of the dangers of a real break between America and Britain on Palestine, is paramount. And the decision has been taken to substitute, for the former Bevin policy, a policy of attempting to achieve agreement between the state of Israel and Trans-Jordan's King Abdullah. According to such an agreement, Abdullah would assume authority in the Arab portions of Palestine, while recognizing a Jewish state within the boundaries recommended by the United Nations.

BRITISH INFLUENCE has already been quietly brought to bear on Abdullah to this end. The Trans-Jordan King has been unofficially but firmly informed that if his British-trained Arab Legion crosses the United Nations' partition line, British subsidies, on which Abdullah is wholy dependent, will cease. Moreover, direct negotiations between emissaries from Israel and Abdullah's representatives are now in progress, and the British desire for an agreed settlement has been delicately communicated to Abdullah.

No one here underestimates the obstacles which lie in the path of such a settlement between Abdullah and Israel. If Abdullah agrees, the other Arab states, especially Iraq, Syria and Egypt, will howl blue murder. Attempts by the triggermen of the discredited Mufti of Jerusalem to assassinate the Trans-Jordan King are not to be ruled out. Trouble is also expected from Egypt's King Farouk, who may well dispatch his somewhat sleazy army to try to conquer tha Negeb, the desert area to the south, awarded to Israel in the United Nations partition recommendation.

Yet it is believed here that if Abdullah's courage can be screwed to the sticking point, and if, above all, such a settlement is backed wholeheartedly not only by Britain but by the United States, it can be successful. For with real British and American backing, Abdullah has the necessary cards in his hands. It is now clear beyond the faintest doubt that Abdullah's Arab Legion is the only really effective Arab fighting force in the Middle East. The achievements of the forces of other Arab states have consisted largely in capturing, with much noise and hubbub, a few Arab villages. If a settlement between Israel and Trans-Jordan is reached, and if Trans-Jordan is recognized by the United States while Israel is recognized by Britain, Abdullah could not be seriously challenged by his Arab rivals.

THE GREAT QUESTION here is whether real American support for this new British policy is indeed possible. One weakness of the new policy is simply that it cannot be officially announced or publicly defended, since to do so would be to endanger the Western position in other Arab states, and to play into the hands of Abdullah's numerous Arab enemies. Moreover, it is feared here that anti-British feeling on the Palestine issue in the United States is now so bitter as to render any joint Anglo-American Palestine policy impossible at this late date. This American feeling is thought to be a far more serious obstacle to a settlement than the dark threats of the Mufti or the ambitions of Egypt's fat King. For the new British policy can hardly succeed unless it is understood and supported in the United States.

Yet if the new policy fails, it seems pretty obvious that the United States will one day have to choose between sending American troops to the Middle East or seeing Soviet power extended throughout that vital area. That is a choice which it would be a good deal better not to have to make. Whatever pleasure or political advantage there may be in mutual recrimination between the two countries, making "a proper muck" of Palestine policy is a luxury which the United States can clearly no more afford than Great Britain.

Hospital Crisis Affects Welfare Of All, Grew Says

"The welfare of the public as a whole is at stake in the struggle of our local hospitals to survive their current difficulties," Joseph C. Grew warned yesterday in a radio talk over WTOP.

Grew, a member of the Board of Incorporators at Garfield Hospital since 1943, said the crisis "can be blamed on the rising cost of living which plagues most of us these days." Another factor contributing to the difficulties is the rise in population, he said.

The speaker, who is a former Ambassador to Japan, was interviewed by Mrs. Hazel Markel, WTOP director of education and public service, in a program on the functions of the Hospital Council of the National Capital Area.

Michael, Anne Fly to Athens

Geneva, Switzerland, June 6 (U.P.). Former King Michael of Romania and his sweetheart, Princess Anne of Burbon-Parma, left here at 11:30 p. m. (local time) on a Trans-World Airliner for Athens and their wedding there Thursday.

At the last minute the handsome young monarch decided to take no chances in his private plane. Anne went alone to the Roman Catholic Church for mass—she said she will never give up her religion and later enjoyed the sunshine in her hotel garden where Michael joined her.

The royal family went ahead with wedding plans, impervious to the Vatican's announced disapproval of the marriage.

A Bank for Washingtonians

Years ago, bankers often had a special interest in serving preferred groups, which is why today you find in the names of banks such words as "Manufacturers", "Merchants", "Farmers" and "Mechanics". The group of Washingtonians who founded this bank nearly a half century ago had no special group in mind, but wished to serve efficiently all the banking needs of a growing metropolis.

We respect that tradition, and constantly seek ways to broaden our banking service both to firms and individuals, believing that all citizens benefit from the growth and prosperity of our beloved capital city.

CHECKING ACCOUNTS FOR EVERYONE

Both firms and individuals find many advantages in our REGULAR CHECKING ACCOUNTS. Service charges, if any, depend on size and activity. As little as $5 opens a POPULAR CHECKING ACCOUNT. No minimum balance—you pay only $2 for each book of 20 checks.

SAVING REGULARLY PAYS

It gives you ready cash for emergencies, business opportunities and the good things of life. It establishes bank credit for you, gives a feeling of accomplishment and helps bring down prices. Your savings at the Union Trust will earn 1½% interest up to $2,500, and 1% over this amount.

2 Area Men Receive West Point Awards

West Point, N. Y., June 6 (AP).—Thirteen cadets of the 1948 graduating class of the United States Military Academy received awards today at ceremonies in conjunction with traditional June week festivities.

Baccalaureate services, conducted at chapels of the Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths, also were held for the 301 members of the class.

Commissions and degrees will be presented to the graduating cadets Tuesday by Secretary of Defense James Forrestal.

Nineteen special awards, donated annually by various patriotic societies and individuals, were presented to cadets with outstanding military and academic proficiency records.

Two cadets, Arnold W. Braswell of Sibley, La., and Richard D. Cudahy of Milwaukee, Wis., received three awards each.

Braswell, Cadet first captain and regimental commander, was given the Pershing Sword, named after Gen. John J. Pershing, first captain and brigade commander at the Academy in 1886. Braswell also received special awards for the highest ratings in physics and military proficiency.

Cudahy was honored for the highest ratings in economics and international relations, in English and in law.

This year's class honor man, Joseph M. Kiernan, jr., of Brooklyn, received the Francis Vinton Greene Memorial Saber for the highest standing in general order of merit for four years, and a special award for the top rating in mathematics.

Others honored, and the subjects in which they excelled included: Arthur L. Whitley of 3815 Beecher st. nw., Washington, D. C., chemistry, and Richmond J. Cooper of 25 Kennedy dr., Chevy Chase, Md., modern languages.

Included in today's baccalaureate services was the dedication of a two-paneled memorial stained-glass chapel window presented by the graduating cadets. A graduation parade and dance are scheduled for tomorrow.

Fine Music Marks Day At Churches

By Paul Hume

Washington's churches provided the city with most of its fine music yesterday, as they do many Sundays in the year.

Paul Callaway gave a sterling recital on the Washington Cathedral organ; Theodore Schaefer's choir from the National Presbyterian Church sang an exemplary program at the National Gallery, and Charles Dana Beaschler directed soloists, chorus, and orchestra in Dvorak's Stabat Mater in the New York Ave. Presbyterian Church.

Callaway offered a Buxtehude prelude and fugue, Bach's Canonic Variations on a choral, variations by Leo Sowerby, and an early work of Cesar Franck. The Buxtehude was an amazing piece of music for the harmonic freedom and florid style it maintained. No wonder Bach went miles to hear his great predecessor play. Yet had Buxtehude ever heard the Canonic Variations he would have been proud of his successor. These incredibly difficult mutations of the old tune, "Vom Himmel Hoch," contain contrapuntal devices of fascinating complexity. Yet when Callaway played them they sounded clear as crystal.

His poetic side was in evidence during the rich chromatics of Sowerby's Variations, and in the Franck his hearers were treated to unrivaled virtuosity. In all this, one was conscious of the supreme musicianship controlling the entire recital. It is in precisely this domain that Callaway outstrips most of his contemporaries.

Beaschler has trained his large chorus choir to a point of fine skill and tonal beauty. Their exposition of Dvorak's rather doleful work was marked with a sonorous grandeur befitting its subject. William Watkins was a tower of strength at the organ, and the recently formed orchestra contributed much. They will undoubtedly find the going easier as they work together more.

Schaefer's program at the National Gallery included Copland's "In the Beginning" and Britten's "Rejoice in the Lamb," which he gave several months ago in his own church. To these he added Heinrich Schutz's motet, "Give Ear, O Lord," and a brief work of Palestrina. These concerts were well attended, in addition to a large audience that gathered at the Watergate to hear the Army Band in a special program. The summer augurs well at this point.

Vacation relief men, numbering about 50, also receive a $5-a-week wage boost.

Improved Conditions

Eugene Hubbard, business agent and secretary-treasurer of the local, who presented the proposals to the membership meeting, said the new agreement contains a number of minor improvements in working conditions.

Under its old contract, which expired last midnight, the union had a closed shop. In the new contract, to comply with the Taft-Hartley law, the closed shop is replaced with a union shop. Alexandria dairies are exempted from the union shop provision because of a Virginia law outlawing the union shop.

Prior to last night's membership meeting, Federal Conciliator Thomas F. Martin had described the latest proposal as a "complete agreement" between union and management negotiators.

Union and management negotiators spent a full day in conference yesterday at the Wardman Park Hotel prior to the night meeting of the union members.

Commission Rate Issue

The union's demands had centered primarily on a change in the commission rates. In addition to a 30-cents hike for hourly workers, they had sought an extra 2 per cent commission for wholesale drivers on all collections above $2500. Wholesale drivers, it was said, now have a base pay of $31 a week plus an over-all 2 per cent commission.

For retail drivers, the union asked an additional 2 per cent on all collections above $2700 a month. Union officials said retail drivers under the existing contract receive $41 weekly base pay plus 5 per cent on collections.

Under the old agreement, the minimum guarantee for wholesale route drivers was $60.25. For retail route drivers it was $55.50.

Dairies involved are: Alexandria Dairy Products Co., Chestnut Farms, Embassy, Harvey, Lucerne Milk Co. (a division of Safeway Stores, Inc.), Model Farms, Richfield, Thompson's and Wakefield.

Negotiations were launched May 10.

Grandfather Entered as Ideal Dad

Kids, have you an ideal father in your home?

Don't keep his light hidden under a bushel. Sit down and write The Washington Post a letter describing in full his qualifications for first place in The Post's Ideal Father Contest.

A special plaque, plus dinner out for his whole family, and tickets to a show will be the winning dad's reward.

Among the latest entries is a 65-year-old father of five children, now bringing up his orphaned granddaughter. A full-time employe of the United States Soldiers Home, George W. Chapman, 716 Chillum rd., Hyattsville, Md., still manages to raise enough vegetables in his spare time to feed the family all summer.

Capt. Lawrence R. Sutherland, Assistant Chief of Thoracic Surgery at Walter Reed Hospital, receives separate nomination from his two young sons, Larry, 10, and Timothy, 9. Father of four children, Captain Sutherland finished his interneship just three years ago.

Mrs. Virginia Carrick throws her dad's hat into the ring because "whenever we need help, or just want to go home for an enjoyable evening, dad is always there to greet us." Her father is Thomas E. Miller, Capitol Transit Co. inspector, 1704 B st. se.

Contest letters should be addressed to the Ideal Father Editor, Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C., and postmarked no later than midnight June 16.

Majorities Also Have Rights, Says Hoey

"The United States Government should not be administered solely for minorities, but also for majorities." Senator Clyde R. Hoey (D., N. C.) told those at Confederate Memorial Services yesterday.

He addressed a crowd of approximately 400 in the Arlington Amphitheater, at services honoring departed heroes of the 60's and of the two world wars. He said he believed firmly in civil liberties and explained that many persons, when they talk of such liberties, seem to think they exist only for minority groups, or "pressure groups."

"I believe also in constitutional, State and individual rights, and in the Bill of Rights," said Hoey, "The Confederates believed in constitutional rights, for that is what they were fighting for.

"The South now stands strongly against communism and all subversive influences which would destroy our civilization. And the South shall continue to stand in this fashion. For it is part of the heritage for which it fought."

Hoey told his listeners that although the South had drawn heavily on all resources at its command when arms were stacked at Appomattox, it has since performed a service "unequaled in any other part of the Nation in maintaining American ideas.

Prior to Hoey's address, memorial services were held at the Confederate Monument in the cemetery grounds. Wreaths from the President of the United States and from a number of patriotic organizations were placed at the monument. Music for both services was furnished by the United States Marine Band.

The service was under the auspices of the Confederate Memorial Committee, representing the Sons of Confederate Veterans, the United Daughters of the Confederacy, Children of the Confederacy, Confederate Memorial Association and Southern Relief Society.

Dr. Donald B. Hoffman of Allentown, Pa., national secretary, instituted the chapter at a meeting in Copley Lounge on the campus. Membership consists of two professors, 10 students from the Graduate School and nine from the College of Arts and Sciences.

The faculty representatives are Dr. Tibor Kerekes, head of the department of history; and Dr. Robert C. Tansill, professor of American history and diplomacy. Student members were chosen on a basis of scholarship and demonstrated leadership.

The charter members taken into the chapter from the Graduate School were:

One on the Aisle—

Arabic Filmdom Will Be Amazed

By Richard L. Coe

REPORTS FROM TEL AVIV that the capital of the new country of Israel hopes to be known eventually as "the Hollywood of the Middle East" will bring, to put it mildly, blank looks of surprise from the Golden Horn to the Gulf of Aden.

For there already is a "Hollywood of the Middle East," which lately has been turning out nearly 100 feature-length films a year. Just as it is the center of the Arabic publishing world, Cairo is the heart of the Arabic film world and has been "the Hollywood of the Middle East" for the past 15 years.

With only 700,000 citizens of Israel to supply with Yiddish language films, the new project headed by South Africa's Norman Lourie and the United States' Joseph Krumgold is in the same sort of position as a film concern, say, of several hundred Esquimos setting up shop on the Pacific Coast and declaring that they intend to be the Hollywood of California.

By this, I do not mean to infer that Palestine Films, Inc., is to be scorned because of the modestness of its venture. As we all frequently observe, perhaps to our dismay, the colossal and gigantic do not necessarily mean a fine film. The impressive creative skill of the new settlers and the beauty of their labors on the Palestine countryside will no doubt bring to America—where the privately financed company is incorporated—some moving, interesting films.

A great deal of the new venture's success must lie thousands of miles from the Tel Aviv studios. As everyone knows, the new country's 700,000 citizens live smack in the middle of 40 million Arabs to whom the Middle East is, and always has been, home. The language barrier alone—for most Arabs do not speak Hebrew—will mean that if the Tel Aviv studios are to have any appeal for their immediate neighbors, that appeal will have to be fundamentally visual.

National Bank Formed Studio

Egypt, most nearly enlightened of the Middle East states, has been considerably influenced by the fact that its leaders have been educated first in the British and American schools at home, then in the universities of England, Europe and the United States. About 15 years ago Mohamed Karin and Bahija Hafez brought cameras back from Paris and made the first silent Arabic film, "The White Rose."

Then, as even now, the greatest lack of the Egyptian studios was trained technicians. Soon after "The White Rose," Misr, the National Bank of Egypt, took a financial interest and backed Studio Misr. Since then six other studios have grown up—most of them along the edge of the Nile Valley near the Sphynx and the great pyramids.

Their pictures naturally had a quick success in Egypt and throughout the Arabic-speaking world of the Middle East. By our standards, of course, the technique is usually primitive, although several outstanding films have been made. One such film is "Rahiba," the story of a young Bedouin girl depicting the life, traditions and habits of the desert Arabs. If the Arab office were wiser in the ways of public relations as the Western world understands them—and, perhaps, wealthier—this picture would by now have found some outlet in the United States.

Rise of Nationalism

In recent years, particularly since the war, the rise of nationalism in the struggling lands of the Middle East has brought with it an anti-foreign film surge, particularly in Egypt. Of 180 theaters in Egypt, 118 now screen Arabic films exclusively and no American films, which once were enormously popular, are now shown in the provincial towns.

Lately, there has been an attempt to counteract this anti-foreign bias by dubbing Arabic sound into English dialogue films. "The Thief of Bagdad," for insance, was given this treatment at Studio Misr, with a Sudanese boy dubbing in the voice of India's Sabu.

Financially, too, the film scene is interesting, for it brings home once again that our fabulous Hollywood films are made for the masses the world over. You pay at least twice as much for an Arabic film in the cinemas of Cairo than you do for a Hollywood product. High admission charges are necessary to pay off the cost of the films.

Adulation for Arabic Stars

While the Arabic films necessarily strike American travelers as bizarre (I shall never forget Misr's "Romeo and Juliet," whose literal translations of some of Shakespeare's celebrated lines fell like gags from Joe Miller's joke book on ears accustomed only to kitchen Arabic), they have built up 10 or 12 immensely popular stars who are treated with all the gravity we accord our Hollywood zephyrs. The funeral of one in Cairo several years ago brought out a more gigantic show of flowers than were ever witnessed in Hollywood's Wee Kirk o' the Heather.

Another pregnant thought on the Arabic films: they're enormously popular in the bordering lands of Russia and make a revealing financial and cultural tie between the surging Arab world and the nearby Soviet.

So, having lived four years during the past 11 in the Middle East, I can safely say that the Tel Aviv ambition to be "The Hollywood of the Middle East" will provoke a chatter of amazement along the banks of the Nile.

Senator Ives Says Attack On Any Religion Involves All

An attack on any religion anywhere in the world today is an attack on all religion, Senator Irving M. Ives (R., N. Y.) declared yesterday.

Speaking at ground breaking ceremonies for the new $75,000 Washington Highlands Jewish Center, 2d and Xenia sts. sw., Senator Ives praised the congregation for building its synagogue center next to the proposed Covenant Baptist Church.

The ground-breaking ceremony, he said, is symbolic of the great permanent and fundamental power of religion in our lives.

Palestine Goal Cited

Speaking of events in Palestine today, the New York Senator said, "At the bottom of that great new state is a fighting faith backed by the moral and spiritual values which will bring ultimately what all of us desire."

Rabbi Morris Sandhaus, special assistant in the Veterans Administration chaplain's service, told the congregation that the American way of life is composed of many ways brought from many lands. He said Jews in America, living according to the Torah and the principles of law, are living the American way.

Support for Israel Urged

The spiritual leader of the congregation, Rabbi Morris Pickholz, called upon members of the new center to rally public opinion, to give moral support, and to send money, clothing, and arms to the people of Israel.

He urged members to dedicate themselves to the goals of the center and to work together in accomplishing their goals.

Among those who participated in the ground-breaking ceremonies were Rabbi Harry J. Kaufman of Beth Sholom Congregation, the Rev. F. L. Squires of Covenant Baptist Church; Abraham Grunstein, Irwin Lipman, Mrs. Irwin Lipman, and David Tanzman. A band from the Navy School of Music played several selections.

Army Band at Greenbelt

The United States Army Band, which recently concluded a successful concert tour of several American cities, will play for Greenbelt, Md., residents at 6 p. m. Tuesday in the Greenbelt Center. The leader is Capt. Hugh Curry.

Its name speaks for itself—ROADMASTER.

It's Buick's 144-horsepower greyhound that covers ground and grades with the effortless smoothness of a cruising cloud.

It's big—18 feet from bumper to massive bumper—and spacious, and stacks up to a solid 4,400 pounds of trim roadweight to keep your ride true and steady.

Yet for all its brawny bigness, the Buick ROADMASTER has a power-to-weight ratio that means fewer pounds per horsepower.

So you find this handsome heavyweight spry and mighty like precious few other cars.

You take any road, any hill, any sudden need for speed with a swift smooth sureness that puts a song in your heart.

And you find this beauty's great Fireball engine not only tireless but practically throbless, too—for now it's Hi-Poised mounted for new smoothness.

You find this fashion-plate traveler not only superbly fitted with luxurious trim and finish but serenely quiet and restful, too—for now it's insulated against road noise by Sound-Sorber top lining, and isolated against vibration build-up by Vibra-Shielding.

You find this stunningly smart car not only feather-light in handling but incredibly level and buoyant in its soft ride—for here all-coil springing combines with extra-big, extra-soft tires and the industry's widest rims.

And if you add to this finest of fine automobiles the new engineering triumph called Dynaflow Drive,* you have a car like no other in all America — the only car in the land in which no gears shift as you drive.

Why not come visit us and look into it? Better yet—we'll take your order for one right now, with or without a car to trade.

*Optional at extra cost on Roadmaster models only.

When better automobiles are built BUICK will build them

BUICK alone has all these features

★ DYNAFLOW DRIVE — smooth, silken flow of power with no gears ever shifting either manually or mechanically. (Optional, Roadmaster Series)

★ TAPER-THRU STYLING — distinctive, tapering car-length fenders set a fashion of stand-out beauty. (Super and Roadmaster Models)

★ VIBRA-SHIELDED RIDE — smooth, fatigue-free ride from scientific curbing of vibration build-up.

★ HI-POISED FIREBALL POWER — valve-in-head straight-eight engines in four power ratings, now cradled to new smoothness.

★ SAFETY-RIDE RIMS — check heel-over on turns; better car control, peak mileage and lower tire pressures.

★ FLEX-FIT OIL RINGS—in super-precise cylinder bores. New oil savings.

★ SOUND-SORBER TOP LINING —insulated for new "conversation tone" quiet. (Super and Roadmaster Models)

★ DUOMATIC SPARK ADVANCE — vacuumatic plus centrifugal action assures exact ignition for peak engine efficiency.

★ TEN SMART MODELS—in three series, featuring Body by Fisher and smart new interiors.

White sidewall tires, as illustrated, available at extra cost.

—With Shirley Povich

ROCCO BARBELLA and Anthony Zaleski, names that sound like a couple of imposters and only remotely associated with the world middleweight title, will be fighting for same for the third time nevertheless, on Wednesday evening at Newark's Ruppert Stadium.

POVICH

Barbella achieved some notoriety with the Army a few years back and the M. P.'s had a horrible time catching up with him on an AWOL charge despite the fact he made no attempt to hide out. Any New York East Sider with a smidgin of boxing background could have told 'em that Rocky Graziano, a very busy figure in the wartime fight business, was their man Rocco Barbella.

It wasn't any alias that Barbella adopted to throw the provost marshalls off the scent. He merely resumed the boxing business under the name he had always preferred —Rocky Graziano. Barbella, meaning very beautiful in Italian, was simply regarded as too sissy for a fighter, so Rocco Barbella became Rocky Graziano, a family name of his grandmother.

ANTHONY ZALESKI served honorably in the Navy under the name of Anthony Zaleski, but only his mother calls him that in moments of sternest displeasure. To the folks who read newspapers, especially the sports pages, his is better known as Tony Zale, who used to be one of the good middleweight champions of the world.

In fact, Zale took the middleweight title into cold storage with him for three years when he joined up with the Navy. It was a permissible wartime freeze of the title, with the boxing bosses waiving the rule that a champion must defend his crown every six months.

And so it was that when Zale, inducted into the Navy and ordered to boot camp at Great Lakes, the petty officer who registered him in asked his name. "Anthony Zaleski, and you say you were a middlewieght pugilist in civilian life? he asked Tony. "That's right" said Zaleski.

"Well, if you can fight a little bit," Zaleski was told, "you can get action right away. Tony Zale, middleweight champion, will be checking in here any day. We'll match you with him."

"Okay," said Zaleski, get me Zale," that's one guy I always could lick.

THE GRAZIANO-ZALE affairs have been the most blood-letting series of modern times. Neither of their fights went more than six rounds, and they both picked themselves up off the floor to score a knockout. Rocky was knocked out in their first battle in 1946 when he appeared to be winning Zale's title, and he knocked Zale out a year later in Chicago when on the verge of a knockout himself.

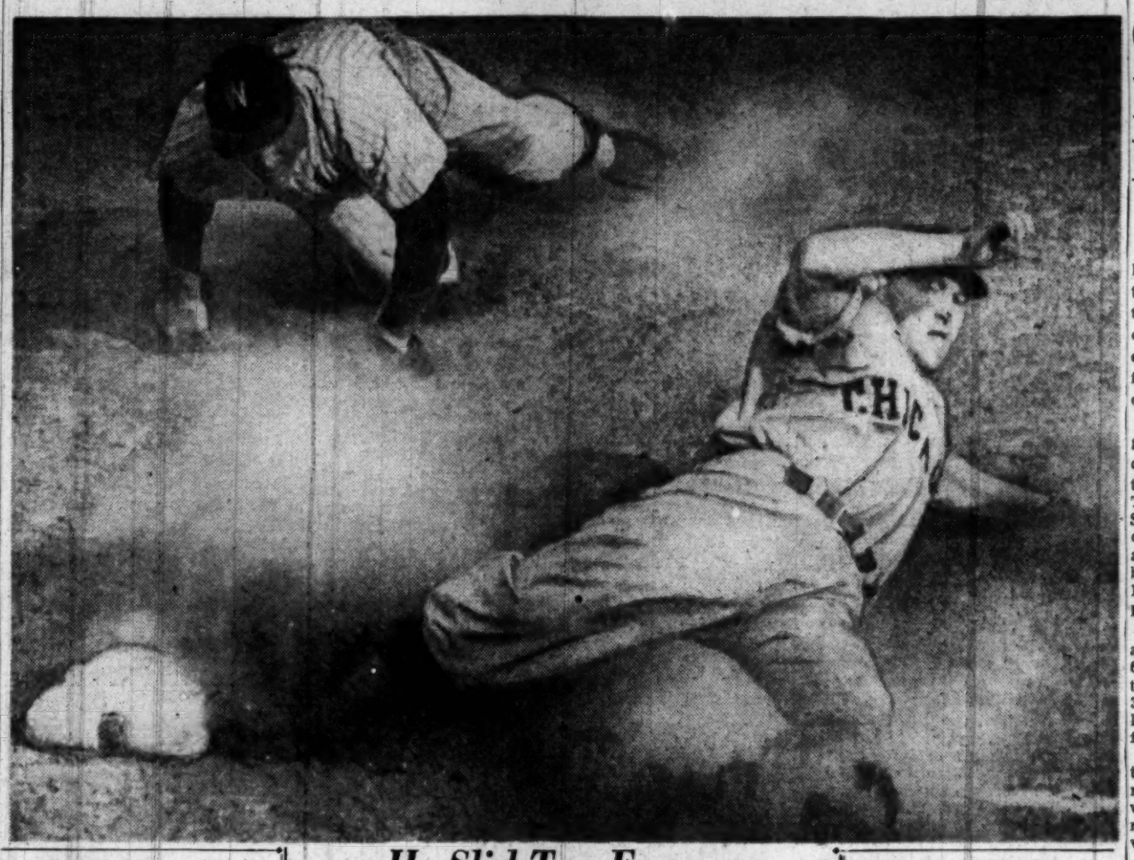
It's been a very profitable business for the two guys. Their first engagement produced a gate of $342,497 and set a new record for middleweights, and at Chicago they lifted that record to $422,918. Out of the two matches Zale has taken the tidy sum of $230,950 and Graziano has taken down $154,576, out of which he bethought himself to set up his jobless brother in the pool room business.

Because the fight is in New Jersey, a referee will be in complete charge and there will be no judges to vote on the decision, like New York and Chicago. That stacks up, however, as the most unimportant item about the fight. Nobody expects a Zale-Graziano fight to go the limit, and it will be an upset if anybody has to vote on the decision.

IN THE PAST SEVERAL days, Zale has been lending himself to the prefight ballyhoo with statements that Referee Behr stopped their Chicago fight too quickly when Zale was draped over the ropes and Rocky was awarded a knockout in the sixth. That's a high bit of fol-de-rol because Zale was in such foul shape at that moment he might have been a basket case if Behr had permitted Graziano to belt him with another right hand.

Zale has a better excuse for what happened at Chicago, though. The gross mismanagement of the affair, which found the promoters making no provisioning for air-conditioning the indoor arena on one of the summer's hottest nights, made it a veritable steam bath for both fighters and ringsiders. The big ring lights unloosed the worst heat this side of Hades and the 34-year-old Zale wilted fast.

That's the big edge Graziano will carry into their bout on Wednesday—his eight-year pull in the ages. Rocky, the good puncher, can't punch any harder than Zale who is a better sharpshooter and with both hands, moreover. But at 34 Zale's recuperative powers are open to suspicion.



He Slid Too Far . . .

OUT AT THIRD—Nat Third Baseman Eddie Yost fields a grounder by Taft Wright, White Sox Outfielder Pat Seerey slides into and past third, being tagged out by Yost. Action took place in the third inning of the nightcap, which the Nats lost, 11-4. Chicago won the opener also, 10-4

Yanks Take Pair; 7th in Row for Raschi

New York, June 5 (AP).—Vic Raschi gained his seventh straight victory and second consecutive shutout when he pitched the New York Yankees to a 3-0 triumph over the St. Louis Browns in the second game of a doubleheader today.

The Yanks also won the first game, 4-3, with Bobby Brown singling home Gus Niarhos from second in the ninth inning to break a 3-3 tie.

Steve Souchock and Johnny Lindell homered for the Yanks while Gerry Priddy led the Brownie attack with a four-bagger, triple and single.

The double triumph enabled the Yankees to climb within a half game of the second place Philadelphia Athletics. On the other hand, the Browns, in losing their fifth and sixth straight, dropped into seventh place.

Raschi gave up only three hits and did not allow a runner to reach second base.

Hatten Blanks Reds on 2 Hits

Cincinnati, June 6 (AP).—With Joe Hatten pitching two-hit ball, the Brooklyn Dodgers shut out the Cincinnati Reds 5-0 today in a five-inning, rain-abbreviated first game of a scheduled double header.

With a light rain still falling after a 45-minute delay and the playing field filled with pools of water, the umpires postponed the second game to the disappointment of a crowd of 26,554.

Hatten, notching victory No. 5 as against two defeats, singled and drove in a run to help his own cause.

The Brooks shelled starter Howard Fox for eight hits, driving him from the mound in the fifth frame.

Jackie Robinson made his first major league appearance at third base, subbing for injured Joe Jorgenson. Manager Leo Durocher said Robinson was the best hitter among those who could play third.

Griffs Still Figure in Tie For Fourth

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

The Nats' ambitions, in the late hours of yesterday, were reduced to an attempt to break even with the last-place White Sox in a double-header but they failed of even that modest goal. They suffered a compound fracture of their one-game winning streak.

Chicago, winner of only 10 games previously this season, suddenly flexed its muscles and gave the Nats a complete going-over. The White Sox landed a one-two Sunday punch. They won the opening game of the bill, 10 to 4, and then broke out of that slump by winning the second game, 11 to 4.

Hudson, Masterson Pounded

They smacked Sid Hudson around in the first game to take a 6-1 lead, and in the second game they wiped out Walter Masterson's 3-2 lead in the fifth inning with a lot of base hits by a lot of different fellows.

For 15,772 Washington customers it was a long, low afternoon in which the Nats' starters were not only battered into retirement but their relief pitching was very undistinguished.

The only balm for the Nats was that the double defeat didn't quite knock 'em out of fourth place, which they had been sharing with the Detroit Tigers. That club also lost a pair of games, and the Nats are now in a triple tie for fourth with the Tigers and Red Sox, who moved up.

Hudson didn't last out the fifth inning of the opener, despite the 1-0 lead the Nats gave him when Eddie Yost, Al Kozar and Gil Coan led off with singles against Joe Haynes.

Chisox Take Lead

The White Sox got a run back in the third and came up with another run in the fourth despite the fact that Dave Philley embarrassed himself by failing to touch second base on his triple to left and was called out.

Hudson couldn't get anybody out in the fifth. He walked Baker, Kolloway beat out a bunt, Lupien doubled past Vernon and Seery doubled to left and it added up to a 4-run inning for the Sox. They punched out four more runs against Forrest Thompson after he took over.

The Nats got back into the ball game briefly in the fifth inning when they scored three times against Joe Haynes to cut his lead to 6-4. Singles by Stewart and Yost were the only hits in the inning. Haynes, who suffered a bruised leg when hit by Yost's drive, retired before the inning was over, but received credit for the victory. Grove and Judson held the Nats in check.

They're Off Again

In the second game, the Sox had a run before they had a hit. Masterson walked Baker in the first inning, he stole second, took third on an infield out and scored on Lupien's fly. Wright's double to right led to another run in the second.

The Nats wiped out that 2-0 lead of Glen Moulder in the third when two walks and singles by Yost and Stewart got a pair of runs home, but the Sox rapped Masterson hard for four runs in the seventh.

They did it all with two out. Masterson put Moulder and Baker on base with walks, and in succession Kolloway singled to left, Lupine tripled to right-center and Seerey doubled to left.

Michaels' triple upped the Sox lead to 7-4 in the eighth and in the ninth young Dick Welteroth pitched, you might say, three-hit, four-run ball.

IN SHORT: The Nats should know better than to schedule the White Sox for a Sunday doubleheader . . . Eight of the 12 games the Sox have won this season were Sunday doubleheaders or parts thereof. They've never lost the opening game of a Sunday twin bill! . . . The custombers took to booing Mickey Vernon in the second game after he went hitless in the opener . . . Al Gettel, obtained from Cleveland, made his debut for the Sox as a relief pitcher yesterday by walking the first man he faced and then balking him to second base . . . Sid Hudson is having a horrible time of it in recent weeks. He has failed to last out any of his last seven starts for the Nats . . . Ray Scarborough, impressive 2-1 winner over Cleveland in his last outing, faces the White Sox tonight . . . Bob Gillespie, once beaten in this series, will start for Chicago.

Tribe Swats Macks Twice, 5-3 and 11-1

Philadelphia, June 6 (AP).—The front-running Cleveland Indians tagged the skidding Philadelphia Athletics with a pair of defeats today, 5-3 and 11-1, to open up a two and a half game lead in the American League flag chase.

A season record crowd of 37,900 watched Bob Lemon, the majors' top winner, annex his eighth victory of the year in the opener.

By losing, the Athletics dropped to within a half-game of the third place New York Yankees, who won twice from the St. Louis Browns.

Manager Lou Boudreau homered for the Indians while Hank Majeski socked a four-bagger for the A's—the latter with one man on base in the first game.

The Indians' warclubs banged out 16 hits off Dick Fowler and Bob Savage in the nightcap with Joe Tipton, Dale Mitchell and Kenny Keltner leading the assault.

Tipton smacked out five hits, including two doubles, in five trips to the plate. This stretched the rookie catcher's consecutive hitting streak to eight straight hits.

Mitchell went "4 for 6" and knocked in five runs. Keltner had three safeties included his fourteenth home run of the year. Eddie Robinson also clouted a four-bagger in the second game massacre.

It was Fowler's first loss of the year after three victories. Steve Gromek, making his first start for the Indians, scattered six safeties and would have had a shutout except for Eddie Joost's home run in the first inning.

Jim Demaret Wins Tourney

Albuquerque, N. Mex., June 6 (AP).—Jimmy Demaret clipped five strokes off par for a 67 in the fourth found and a 72-hole score of 268 to win first money in the Albuquerque Open Gold tournament today.

The Ojai, Calif., sharpshooter breezed home four blows to the good as Stewart (Skip) Alexander, Lexington, N. C., uncorked a flashy 65 to go wth his previous 207 for 272 and second place.

In winning the tournament, Demaret overcame a fourth round jinx which tripped him here last year.

Drawling Clayton Heafner slipped to a 2-over-par 74 after trailing Demaret by a single stroke for two days. This dropped the Charlotte, N. C., big fellow to fourth with a 72-hole score of 276.

Ahead of him by one blow was steady E. J. (Dutch) Harrison from Little Rock, Ark., with 206, 69—275.

Demaret's 1947 record of 64 for the 6813-yard University of New Mexico course was left intact with his first day 65 and that today by Alexander the nearest approach. Par for the hilly public links layout is 35, 37—72.

Spence Hits Two Homers

Bosox Batter Tigers Twice, 5-4, 12-4; Gain Tie for 4th

Boston, June 6 (AP).—Playing inning of the second game to equal more like the experts forecast before the start of the season Boston's Red Sox today swept a double-header from the Detroit Tigers, 5-4 and 12-4, vaulting from seventh place to a tie for fourth place in the American League.

It was the second consecutive double triumph of the year for the Bostonians whose Ted Williams, Stan Spence and Vern Stephens homered in succession in the sixth a league record. Spence also homered in the first game.

Vern Stephens, whose eighth inning two-run homer tied the score at 4-4 dropped a single into right center in the ninth inning today and drove in the run that gave the Red Sox the victory in the first game.

The Sox now have won five in a row, their longest winning streak of the season.

Yanks Take 2 From Phils, Regain Lead

St. Louis, June 6 (AP). — Red Schoendienst led the way with five doubles and a home run in the two games as the St. Louis Cardinals swept a twinbill from the Philadelphia Phillies today, 11-1 and 2-0.

The double victory put the Redbirds back on top of the National League as the New York Giants and Pittsburgh Pirates split their double-header.

The Cards teed off for 14 hits against three Philadelphia pitchers —including four home runs in the sixth inning by Erv Dusak, Red Schoendienst, Enos Slaughter and Nippy Jones—to down the Phillies in the first game of a double-header today.

The series of circuit blows in a single inning came one short of the National League record set by the New York Giants in 1939.

Richie Ashburn, rookie Philadelphia outfielder, was held hitless in the first game, ending his string of consecutive games in which he hit safely at 23, believed to be a record for a first year man. He also failed to hit in the second contest.

Coolidge Can Win High Title Today

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Coolidge and Anacostia again try to decide the Interhigh baseball championship when they meet at 3:15 today at Griffith Stadium.

Coolidge is 2-0 in the playoffs, while Anacostia is 2-1. Therefore an Anacostia win today will necessitate still another game between the two on Tuesday. A Coolidge win will give the Colts their third straight baseball championship.

Anacostia Must Win

The double elimination playoffs among the top four teams were planned to last two weeks, but a postponement because of rain and a Coolidge-Anacostia 2-2 tie Friday has dragged the finals into a third week.

Friday's tie put a crimp in Coolidge's pitching plans. Coach Carl Heintel had planned using Lefty Ben DuVall today in the event Anacostia beat Ed Hughes Friday.

However, the game was close, and when Hughes developed a wild streak in the fourth inning, Heintel had to send in DuVall to protect a 2-1 lead.

Sengstack Well Rested

The Indians tied the score against DuVall in the fifth, and the game was called at the end of the eighth because it was time for the Nats to take the field.

Leo Kerschbaum, Anacostia's No. 2 righthander pitched the distance giving up three hits and two unearned runs.

So Anacostia will come back with its ace righthander, George Sengstack, who beat McKinley Tech and Eastern in the playoffs. Sengstack is well rested, having pitched last Tuesday. Hughes will probably get the call for Coolidge.

This is the third meeting of the teams this season, Coolidge having beaten Anacostia the first time, 4-3.

Woody Putnam's two-run homer in the last of the eighth gave Rockville a 9-7 triumph over Sandy Spring, and Bethesda outslugged Potomac, 10-8, in the other league tilts.

Thackara Wins City Tennis Title

Jim Thackara added another tennis title to his collection by easily defeating Capt. Robin Hippenstiel, 6—4, 8—1, 6—3, to win the Star's City of Washington tennis championship yesterday at the 16th and Kennedy sts. courts.

A large crowd saw the 34-year-old Thackara, an economist with the World Bank, play his usual steady game to romp past Hippenstiel, runner-up for the All-Army title last year and a heavy pre-match favorite yesterday.

Having captured the District of Columbia and northern Virginia crowns and finishing second to Barney Welsh in the Middle Atlantic tournament, Thackara's victory yesterday was his third major triumph in his one year of Washington tournament competition.

Breaks Hippenstiel's Service

He broke Hippenstiel's service in the seventh game of the first set to move into a 4-3 advantage and in the next game, which was deuced six times, Thackara finally managed to hold his service to move two games up.

Hippenstiel rallied to win his own service, but Thackara held his own delivery at love to take the set 6—4.

Hippenstiel held a brief 1—0 lead in the second set, but Thackara evened the match on his own serve and proceeded to wn the next five games and the set, 6—1.

In the final set, Thackara rapidly took a 4—1 lead but his 32-year-old Army opponent rallied to draw up to 4—3. Thackara put a halt to this flurry by breaking through Hippenstiel's service in the eighth game and finished the match by holding his own serve.

Hippenstiel's poor showing might have been the aftermath of a grueling morning match before downing southpaw Don Leavens, 7—5, 7—5, while Thackara had a relatively easy time of it against Dr. Dave Johnsen, 6—0, 6—4.

Ann Gray won her third straight City of Washington Women's singles crown by defeating Willie Herbert, 6—2, 7—5, in the title round.

Mrs. Gray again showed that her steady back-court game is too much for any woman in this area as she outmaneuvered the improved Mrs. Herbert. Willie has moved to the forefront of the women's rank in the last year, but it will be a little longer before she can take the measure of the blonde champion.

Sandlot Ace Has No-Hitter

Whitey Chancellor, just released by Martinsville, Va., of the Carolina League, pitched a no-hit, no-run victory for Sunnybrook over Campus Club, 6-0, yesterday at Shady Oaks. He fanned eight and walked only three. Sunnybrook has a 5-0 record and leads the Prince Georges Independent League.

Scores of other P.G.I. league games were Maryland Sport Club, 5, Silver Hill, 4, and Fort Carroll, 7, Dixie Pig, 2.

Marx Jewelers opened with a 9-6 exhibition game victory over Leonardtown, Md., on the loser's field.

The Takoma Decorators, girls' softball team, tried their luck against the men at Walter Reed Hospital and beat the Non-Commissioned Officers Club, 2-1, but lost to the Patients, 5-1. . . . Arcade-Pontiac girl softies routed Andrews Field, 23-0, at Andrews. . . . Falls Church kept its Fairfax Junior League lead with a 20-0 romp over Bailey's. In other league games, Vieenna trimmed Groveton, 6-4, and McLean beat Annandale, 6-4. . . . Sentelle's Construction Co. softballers ran their winning streak to 16 with a 4-0 triumph over Keen's Tavern in the first game of a doubleheader at Takoma. But Sheridan Bakery snapped the string in the second game with a 2-1 nine-inning win. . . . Crescent Cafe walloped Triangle, 25-2, and Miller's Steak House tripped Camotops, 9-2, in Arena Softball League contests at West Potomac Park. . . . National Capital beat Washington Post, 13-2, in a Veterans of Foreign Wars League game on the Ellipse. In another V. F. W. game, Walter Reed nosed out Front Line, 3-2.

GOP Leaders Slated To Decide Today on Pay Raises for 1,300,000

This is the day top Senate and House Republican leaders are supposed to make a decision on pay raises for 1,300,000 Federal and District Government workers. The outcome is definitely in doubt.

There are reports that the House leaders will support a "modest" pay raise—not to exceed $400 each for the 475,000 postal employes—that they will oppose increases for the 725,000 Federal and District workers whose salaries are fixed by the Classification Act.

This proposal will be fought by other House and Senate leaders. In fact, several of them predicted yesterday that no pay bill would be passed at this session of Congress unless it included both postal and Classification Act people.

Senators Taft (R., Ohio), Flanders (R., Vt.) and Langer (R., N. Dak.) are among those who are supporting general pay raises for both postal and Classification Act employes.

Even if the House votes a pay bill for postal employes only, the Senate will likely amend it to cover classification people.

The postal employes are well organized. They are spearheading the pressure campaign on Capitol Hill for cost-of-living pay boosts. If Congress should vote to limit pay raises to them, it will, in effect, be inviting the classification people to join miltant unions to secure equal justice for them.

Incidentally, the average postal employe has received a larger percentage pay boost than the Classification Act employe since 1940. But both groups need another raise now to help close the big gap in the cost of living.

AGRICULTURE: A score of key jobs in this department will be filled soon by its new Secretary, Charles Brannan. These are among the people being considered for appointment to either the Undersecretary or Assistant Secretary post:

Albert Loveland of Iowa, who is director of Production and Marketing's conservation program; Nathan Koenig and William A. Minor, special assistants to the Secretary. Frank K. Woolley is a good bet to be appointed deputy administrator of PMA. Wesley McCune, a Washington newsman, has been appointed executive assistant to the Secretary.

REVENUE: The Internal Revenue Bureau will have funds to hire several thousand new employes and to upgrade from 8000 to 10,000 others in its enforcement division. No employes here will be laid off.

These decisions were made by a Senate-House conference on the Treasury appropriation bill.

The bureau will have 174 million dollars for salaries, which is five million dollars less than was originally voted by the Senate, but six millions dollars more than the House first approved. The Senate bill would have provided for 10,000 new Revenue employes. The conference agreement states:

These additional funds shall provide for upgrading positions in field enforcement activities and for the employment of additional qualified enforcement personnel.

"The Secretary of the Treasury shall report to the Congress at the beginning of the next session as to the progress made, including detailed information as to the success of the Internal Revenue Bureau in recruiting competent persons in order that this program may be reviewed at the earliest moment in the Eighty-first Congress, and a decision reached as to whether and the extent the program should be enlarged."

In other words, Congress indirectly promises to approve additional employes if the new ones hired can round up tax chiselers and put more money in the Treasury.

Indirectly, too, the Congress admits that it pulled a major boner when it forced the firing of about 6000 trained Revenue employes a year ago. The cast of training the new batch of employes will be sizable.

The conferees also accepted the Senate provision of $16,530,000 to pay salaries of Revenue employes here. The original House bill would have forced the firing of about 300 in this city.

TREASURY: The report also gives Treasury's savings bonds division $4,250,000 instead of $3,750,000 as voted by the House. The general counsel's office would get $250,000 and the Division of Tax Research $125,000.

STATE will drop or transfer functions that will wipe out between 100 and 150 jobs. And another 100 or more jobs will be abolished during the remainder of this year. The shakedown is forced by a reduced budget. The department expects to get within its new personnel limitation by refusing to fill vacancies. Officials hope few employes will be laid off.

COMMERCE: At long last, Congress has approved and sent to the White House the bill to extend the second Decontrol Act. The act expired on May 31. Upward of 80 Commerce employes who administer that law have been working the past week, not knowing whether they'd be paid for their labors.

Townsendites Hear O'Mahoney Plead Social Justice for All

To the strains of "'Til We Meet Again," the eighth national Townsend Clubs convention adjourned yesterday after five days of conference talks.

"Government owes a responsibility to all the people for social justice," the delegates were told by Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) at the final session of the conference in Uline Arena.

"There must be no human driftwood as the result of progress in science and technology," O'Mahoney said. "The Government must do for people what they cannot do for themselves."

Paying tribute to Dr. Francis E. Townsend, O'Mahoney said the founder of the Townsend National Insurance Plan" realized the fundamental principles of governmental responsibility to all the people" and that "there is now no doubt anywhere in America" about this responsibility.

"The victory is won; it remains only to be patient."

O'Mahoney's talk followed the colorful "parade of states" in which delegates presented their contributions toward expenses of the national organization. Largest contributor was Colorado, which gave $2242. The entire Colorado congressional delegation was reported present.

Among other states contributing more than $1000 were Oregon, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and the New England states as a bloc. The new Washington, D. C., club gave $28.

Among those singled out for special thanks of the convention were Washington's taxi drivers, whose honesty brought praise.

More than 3000 persons attended the convention, among them a great-grandmother who motored from California bringing six delegates. The youngest delegate present, Diane Nelson, 12, of Rice Lake, Wis., was applauded when presented during the parade of State delegations.

At yesterday's session the number of delegates was fewer as many of the spunky folks had begun to wend their way homeward but there was still 1000 or more present for retirement of the colors, repeating of the Townsend pledge, and to sing, "I'll be with you 'til we meet again."

House Action Due Today On District Income Tax

Basic Feature Is $8000 Exemption, Coupled With 2% Retail Sales Tax

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

The proposed District income tax revision on which House action is slated today would make some reductions in the present load on high bracket taxpayers.

This is indicated by tables prepared by District income tax officials comparing the impact of the present District income tax and of the proposed law.

While the proposed law would wipe out the income tax for low-bracket payers, the reduction in the higher brackets would generally be less than $100 a year.

High Brackets Hit

The proposal calls for a high bracket income tax, whose basic feature is an $8000 exemption for every taxpayer. The revised tax system would be coupled with a general 2 per cent retail sales tax, exempting medicine, food for home consumption and some other items.

One feature of the new inome tax bill, cited by Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West, would give a break to married couples each of whom has a large income, in comparison with a couple where one member has all the income.

For example, under the new plan, if a man gets an annual income of $8500 and his wife has a separate income of $8500, neither would pay a tax. Each would get the basic $8000 exemption, and each would have a $500 automatic credit in place of itemized deductions for taxes paid, interest, charitable contributions and the like. (Generally the taxpayer would have the choice of claiming the $500 credit, or listing the deductions if they totaled more.)

For a couple where the husband received all the income, a $17,000 income would result in a tax of about $165. The husband would get the $8000 exemption, plus $500 for his dependent wife, plus the $500 standard credit for deductions. That would leave a taxable income of $8000. He would pay 2 per cent on the first $7000 and 2½ per cent on the next $1000 for a tax of $165.

Couple Given Break

Along the same line, a $50,000 a year man whose wife has no income would pay $235 more than a couple each of whom had $25,000 income. A $100,000 a year man with dependent wife would pay $335 a year more than a couple each of whom had $50,000 income.

Present law gives a $1000 exemption for the taxpayer, $1000 for a spouse, and $500 for each dependent. The new plan treats the spouse generally as a dependent, with a $500 deduction, and continues the $500 deductions for each child or other dependent.

Present rates are 1 per cent on the first $5000 of taxable income. They go up ½ of 1 per cent for each succeeding $5000 to a top of 3 per cent on taxable income over $20,000. In the new plan the rates start at 2 per cent for the first $7000 of taxable income, go to 2½ per cent on the next $5000 and to 3 per cent on taxable income over $12,000.

In the following tables comparing the new and present law, the income figures are the net figures which would remain after the taxpayer took the standard $500 credit in place of special deductions.

Single person, no dependents.

Channel Span Ready in Year or So

The Washington Post

AND NOTHING MORE—This is the site of the so-called Channel Bridge off the George Washington Memorial pkwy., at the foot of Lee blvd., in Arlington, Va. So far only the piers have been erected. It is now said that the new span will be completed "in a year or so." Motorists meanwhile will continue to use the "temporary" span (Danger—15 miles per hour). Memorial Bridge is in background

By Don Olesen
Post Reporter

The five-year-old "temporary" Boundary Channel Bridge, over which Virginia commuters have jiggled for nearly five years, is headed for the scrap heap—in a year or so.

That's the word from the Public Roads Administration, whose new stone bridge has been "under construction" near the site of the wooden span since 1935.

The two-lane wooden bridge is on the George Washington Memorial prkwy. at the foot of Lee blvd. in Arlington, near Memorial Bridge.

18,198 Cars Daily

An average of 18,198 cars daily rumble over its macadam and losely-laid wooden two-by-fours, according to an estimate of the Washington division of the American Automobile Association.

Based on that average, more than 33 million cars have crossed the bridge since it was put up in 1943—or 6,642,270 cars annually.

Arlington County Board Chairman Daniel A. Dugan yesterday called the structure "a traffic hazard," and said he felt a new bridge "could have been completed a long time ago."

The 15-mile speed limit on the bridge, Dugan said, is necessary "to prevent it from falling in with the load of traffic it carries." Dugan also described the "S" curve approaches to the bridge as "very dangerous."

At the same time, completion of the new bridge was described as a "major, emergency objective" by the AAA director of service and travel, William H. Haight.

Another AAA official pointed out that rush-hour traffic sometimes backs up to Memorial Bridge a quarter of a mile away.

C. D. Geisler, chief highway bridge engineer for the Public Roads Administration, said the contract to build new bridge piers was let in 1945, with that work was completed shortly afterwards.

Two things have held up the bridge completion, he said: (1) The refusal of builders to guarantee structural steel delivery, and (2) "their bids were too high."

Contract Awarded

Last January, PBA finally awarded a contract for the steel superstructure to the American Bridge Co., a United States Steel Co. subsidiary. It was awarded at substantially the same price, $160,000, the Government had earlier rejected, Geisler said.

Bridge company officials said yesterday they had contracted to finish their part of the job by next December 24.

At present, they said, the steel framework is being put together in a company plant, with on-the-site work to begin next October.

According to Geisler, the new Boundary Channel Bridge, bases, steel, paving and all, should be ready by the late spring or early summer of 1949.

Which will be good news to more than 18,000 daily commuters.

Something new in thieves—a shoe burglar—occupied police attention here yesterday.

He was "thinking things over" at 10th and L sts. nw., he said, when two men invited him to a place "where it wasn't safe to have too much money." Before going, they suggested they pool their money, and bury it in a handkerchief behind a bush.

When Johnny returned he found the handkerchief. No dough.

Zoning Proposals Reflect Growth of Prince Georges

Growth of Prince Georges County, Md., is reflected in the proposed zoning ordinance and zoning map for which a public hearing will be held at 8 p .m. Tuesday in the National Guard Armory, Hyattsville, Md.

The existing zoning classes has been divided into more specific classification, providing fourteen zone classifications instead of the present five.

Modern trends in community planning also are reflected in the new proposed ordinance.

It provides for a planned community zoning, R-P-C zone, which permits provision of shopping facilities, apartments, detached residential, parks, playgrounds, streets and highways, parking compounds, reservation for educational facilities and similar types.

Residential zones would be divided into R-A zone, agricultural residential; R-R zone, rural residential; R-75 zone, one-family, detached, restricted residential; R-75, one-family detached residential; R-35, one-family, semidetached and two-family detached residential; R-20A, one-family, triple attached residential; R-20, two-family, semidetached residential; R-18, multiple family, low-density residential; R-10, multiple family, medium-density residential and the R-P-C planned community residential zone.

Commercial zoning would be divided into C-1, local commercial; C-2, general commercial; I-1, light industrial, and I-2 heavy industrial.

When the present zoning ordinance was adopted in 1930, Prince Georges County had a population of 60,000 as compared with today's nearly 150,000. This rapid urbanization, especially that portion of the county adjacent to the District of Columbia, has necessitated broadening of zone classifications, improvement of regulations and establishment of more precise administrative procedures in keeping with present and future requirements, according to Planning Director Fred W. Tuemmler.

Following the hearing Tuesday the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission will forward the proposed ordinance to the Prince Georges County Commissioners, final authority in zoning, for adoption after another public hearing.

Made to order

34,000 Calls a Day!

Here in Washington an average of approximately 34,000 out-of-town telephone calls a day are completed.

That's more than twelve million a year. And every one of these calls is tailor-made to specifications.

We don't know where you may wish to call, but each call must be individually made to order on the spot.

Keeping the speed and quality of service on all types of calls up to a high standard requires a great many well-trained and competent telephone men and women.

Good equipment, good wages and pleasant working conditions, plus the earnest desire of telephone people to serve you well, add up to good telephone service. And they are your assurance that service will keep on getting better and better.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Family Is Panicked by Bachelor Brother's Hinted Desire to Marry His Fine Assistant, A Charming Widow; He Is 60 and She's 35

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My father died many years ago, leaving mother with four children: the eldest a son whom I shall call Bud. Bud raised all of us and supported mother, with whom he lived until her death a year ago. Each of us has married well and have homes and families of our own.

Bud is a fine doctor, now 60; and he has had a brilliant successful life. Although he's had lots of girls in his life, being a very attractive man in many ways, he has never married, and until recently he never gave us any reason to suspect that he was interested in any one woman.

Now, however, he indicates that he is in love with and contemplates proposing marriage to his assistant, a beautiful girl with a radiant personality who has great business ability, especially in dealing with people. She is completely loyal and devoted to Bud, and of great help to him in his work.

She is about 35, a widow with a 12-year-old son, a handsome lad, well mannered, who shows good training and is a credit to his mother in every way. Her husband was killed in the child's infancy, so that her character speaks for itself in all that she has accomplished unaided in providing a home and education for him.

Could Man of 60 Tolerate Stepson?

IN ALL fairness to her I'm sure she would make someone an excellent wife, but I believe the vast age difference between her and Bud is too great an obstacle to overcome. Also I cannot see that Bud, at his age and status, could accept and tolerate a stepson, and I am afraid there would be friction on that score.

I should regret the slightest implication that I dislike the girl, for quite the contrary I am very fond of her, as everyone is. I think she is a fine and remarkable person; and if she were just an older woman, with her child raised and out of the way, we should all be delighted, but unfortunately such is not the case.

We want our big brother to be happy, but are terribly afraid that marriage to this young woman would bring him unhappiness, and while none of us has expressed an opinion, I would like your views before venturing one; assuming, of course, that I shall be asked.

E. S.

Family Tizzy Is Unreasonable

DEAR E. S.: Your lame objection to the lady's comparative youth doesn't make sense when weighed against her mature character as demonstrated in her private and professional life, where contributive loyalty is "of the essence" of her able performance.

And as for your notion that Bud, at his age and status, couldn't accept or tolerate a stepson, isn't that wishful thinking? A projection of your own rejecting attitude toward the idea of his being a warmhearted foster-father to her boy? It seems to me you dread having your nose put out of joint.

In all probability, you are afraid that in the event Bud makes a lovematch with the admirable young mother, thereby acquiring a splendid young son (figuratively of his very own) to care for, he might become so happily absorbed in a full life and forwardlooking existence centered on them as to outgrow and slough off his daddy-devotion to the tribe he "raised."

Their Concern Is All Selfish

YOUR unconscious feeling is to the effect that a "suitable" marriage for Bud, if he won't stay single after losing his mother, would be one that didn't alter the pattern of his other family relations in the least.

Therefore, if worst comes to worst, meaning if he WILL marry (so your feeling goes), then you would vote for a nice, gently fading older woman without other vital ties, to be his wife and thus fit neatly into the role of "elder sister" to those who venerate Bud as father-brother.

Lastly, there is subtle snobbery in your attitude. All of you having "married well," you privately feel it would be a great pity if Bud, the best of the lot, were to wed a member of the (ahem) working class, instead of coupling his prestige with a pedigreed wife.

In my opinion, Bud may justifiably consider himself the luckiest man alive, if he is able to win the lady's consent to marriage, assuming she has the many fine qualities you impute to her. M. H.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Washington Post.

Easy Agg Peel

After eggs have been hard-cooked, shell them directly under running water. First cool them under the water to loosen the shell, prevent overcooking and make the handling easier. Then crack the shell by tapping it against a hard edge or with a spoon. Loosen it by rolling the egg between the hands. Hold egg under water and peel at the large end where there is an air space under the shell. Cold water helps ease off the shell and washes away any bits left on the white.

Scholarships to Be Awarded At Vassar Club Meeting

The Vassar Club will hold its final supper meeting of the year Tuesday night at the Madeira School in Greenway, Va. The new Vassar Club president, Mrs. John Steward, will preside at the meeting which will include the awarding of scholarships of $800 each to two local girls, Miss Nancy Clapp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Verner W. Clapp and Miss Shirley Ebaugh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cameron Duncan Ebaugh.

Miss Susan Hoyt, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Hazen L. Hoyt, will also receive a scholarship to Vassar, awarded by the college upon the recommendation of the Washington Vassar Club.

The new officers who will be installed at this meeting in addition to the president, are: Mrs. John Lemp, vice president; Mrs. Howard Heun, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Elting Arnold, recording secretary; Miss Helen L. Zartman, treasurer; Mrs. Lee D. Butler, scholarship chairman; Mrs. A. Ford Hinrichs, council represestative; Mrs. David Austen, membership chairman; Mrs. R. C. Wilson, hospitality chairman, Mrs. Alfred C. Wolf, program chairman; Mrs. Martin C. Atlas, arranger; and Mrs. W. Woodruff Meek, chairman of the committee on by-laws.

Receiving special invitations to the meeting are the 12 Washington girls who were graduated from Vassar last month. They are Miss Betty Alvord, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth C. Alvord; Miss Nancy Collins, daughter of Gen. and Mrs. Joseph Lawton Collins; Miss Cera Cooper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Cooper; Miss Ann Distler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter George Distler; Miss Mary Echols, daughter of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Oliver P. Echols; Miss Molly Geiger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Geiger; Miss Eleanor Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Hill; Miss Barbara Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neville Miller; Miss Frances Nunn, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Ira H. Nunn; Miss Gwenda Pryse, daughter of Col. and Mrs. E. Morgan Pryse; Miss Margaret Benedict, daughter of Gen. and Mrs. Jay L. Benedict and Miss Olive Watson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Watson.

The Washington Vassar Club has just completed its clothing drive for Europe's needy, collecting large amounts of women's and children's clothes from Vassar Club members. Mrs. Clarence Pierce was the chairman of the committee which used "Vassar in America to Vassar in Europe" for its campaign slogan.

The clothing was mailed to Athens, Greece and Vienna, Austria, for distribution among Vassar graduates in need there. An equal amount of clothing went to the Munich, Germany headquarters for refugees from Czechoslovakia since, prior to the war, many young women from that country attended Vassar. On the committee aiding Mrs. Pierce were Mrs. W. Woodruff Meek, Mrs. Sanford J. Randell and Miss Elizabeth Brownell.

Wellesley Club To Hold Annual Picnic Wednesday

The annual June picnic of the Washington Wellesley Club will be held on Wednesday, at the Beauvoir School on Woodley Road. After the picnic, which will start at 6:30 p. m. officers will be elected for the coming two-year term.

A report on the 75th Anniversary Fund campaign will be made by Mrs. Harold H. Burton and movies of the recent international fashion fete will be shown by Mrs. Ridgely Chapline.

Two Washington girls who have won scholarships to the college will be special guests. They are Miss Anita Adler, daughter of Mrs. Helen C. Adler, who was awarded a National Pendleton scholarship by the college; and Miss Jessie Powell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel F. Powell, jr., who has won the annual Wellesley Club scholarship. Miss Adler will graduate from Coolidge High School this month and Miss Powell will graduate from Wilson High School.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McGarraghy of Washington are at Virginia Hot Springs, stopping at the Homestead until the middle of June.

Cotton slips for summer have gained favor this year along with the popular revival of that fabric for use in all types of clothes. Eat Regularly But Leave Table Hungry

By Ida Jean Kain

THAT old saw that prevention is worth pounds of cure is never more apt than when applied to overweight. Still, if it's a bit late to be bring that up, let's find ways—nothing too inconvenient of course—to deal with the excess pounds.

A sure formula is to eat three balanced meals a day, allow four to five hours between meals, and leave the table a mite hungry. That leaving the table just short of full does the trick. And this you have to try, to believe—it gets fairly easy with practice.

You probably figure you never eat more than your appetite requires. But actually, you do, for whether or not you realize it, you go right on eating when no longer hungry. The satiety signal to stop eating, being a trifle muffled under the fat, is completely ignored. And when the stomach has enlarged to the size where the "full up" signal is delayed anyway, it's easy to see where it all leads.

There is just one way out of the dilemma—keep a tight rein on that rambunctious appetite. It doesn't take long. One week does it nicely, if you really set your mind to it. By the fourth day the hunger pangs are quite feeble.

The trick is not to overeat even once during the week. When you suspect you've had enough, but still feel "honestly" hungry—test your appetite. Sure, you'd like more French fries or another hot roll, but how about a second helping of cottage cheese, string beans, rutabagas, or, say, an apple? No thanks? Then you're not really hungry and it's a false appetite you're dealing with—one that will most certainly pile on pounds.

ANOTHER trick to cut appetite down to size is to eat slowly. Generally, the bigger the appetite, the faster you like to eat. So another test: when eating a generous forkful of food, are you busily getting the next one all set? That's eating on the double. And is the left hand reposing politely in your lap, or are you a two-fisted eater . . . with a buttered bun in the left hand, fork in the right? Why be in such a hurry to get fat!

To squelch a ravenous appetite, start the meal with a cup of piping hot bouillon or vegeteable soup. Try to include in every meal a food that requires considerable chewing, for that is a part of the normal satisfaction of hunger. Always include a protein food—lean meat, fish, eggs and cheese stick to the ribs and help you to hold out comfortably until the next meal. Try these tricks for a week—you'll like eating to lose weight.

Ask Anne Budget Time for Housework

Can you give me some sort of a schedule by which I can get my housework done? I work hard every day, but I just don't seem to get caught up. We have a two-story, three-bedroom house and between it and our 7-month-old child, I am kept very busy. I do all my own work, including the washing. I have a table model washer so it must be used every day—for diapers plus some of our things. Bed linens and shirts go to the laundry. Most of the housework must be done in the morning between 8 and 11, while the baby is sleeping. She keeps me busy the rest of the day and I am too tired by evening to do housework. R. N. L.

There are two comments I would like to make at the outset. The sort of schedule which parcels out the day in 15 or 30 minute periods, with a task to be completed each period, doesn't seem to be too successful. The homemaker feels driven constantly, and the slightest interruption gets her behind. A more successful type of schedule is one in which some extra jobs are done each day in addition to the routine, day-by-day dishwashing, etc.

The second observation I wish to make is that because of the thousand details involved in keeping house, a homemaker could not possibly have everything done at one time. For instance, while she's straightening the closets and putting away winter clothes, the windows which were washed last week are getting dirty. So, it's a wise mother and homemaker who can early in her career accept the fact that "being never done" is the very nature of her job. It is easier to achieve this state of mind with a schedule which sets a time for each big job. That way, a dusty house on Thursday, for instance, doesn't bother you so much for you know that Friday morning it will get a good going over.

To work out a schedule which is practical for you, sit down with a pencil and paper and jot down the things which must be done each week, but not every day. This will include such things as ironing, general cleaning (upstairs can be given a weekly cleaning one day, downstairs next) cleaning and defrosting refrigerator, marketing. Plan a day for doing each job and write it down. Each day before starting the extra job for the day, do the daily routine work such as washing breakfast dishes, making beds, tidying up and quickly dusting the living room and dining room. Those should all be done in an hour or so, giving the rest of the morning hours for extra jobs.

One more thing, a 7-month-old baby should not be allowed to keep you busy most of the day. Babies are born selfish. Their wishes are the only ones they know and they will scream, if necessary, to get the attention they think they deserve unless they are taught otherwise. Now, is surely the time to teach your young lady that she is only one member of a family. You can't start too soon and it will never be done at an easier time. She should learn to play happily in her pen or high chair while you work in the same or a near-by room. Make her physically comfortable, give her a plaything or two and don't let her protestations worry you.

I would like to know how to care for a very old piece of needle-point. At present it is framed without glass, and so far, all the care I have given it is to spray against moths. Is there a reliable cleaning concern in Washington I could send it to? Should it be protected by glass? A. S.

Since the needlepoint is very old, unless it is quite soiled, I would suggest you not attempt having it cleaned. Even if cleaned by a very careful, reliable establishment, the manipulation necessary to clean it might break weakened threads. Perhaps, dusting it lightly with dry cleaning powder and then, after a time, brushing away the powder together with the accumulated dust, will be enough to freshen it. Then, by all means, protect by glass. Before enclosing in the frame, spray the needlepoint with a moth preventive and also spray the frame, giving particular attention to cracks. When frame and needlepoint are thoroughly dry, place it in the frame. If the frame is sealed tightly, front and back, the needlepoint should be safe from moths and dust for several years.

I have checked a number of calorie charts, none of which carries the number of calories sour cream contains. This is sour cream as purchased from the stores. I would appreciate your letting me know what these calories are in a cup of sour cream, and, if possible, its food value. That is, protein, carbohydrate, etc. A. C.

Sour cream as purchased from the store is cultured 20 per cent cream. In one cup there is approximately 499 calories—24 calories of protein, 43 calories of carbohydrate and 432 calories of fat.

Will you tell me what sort of clothing I will need on a visit to San Francisco, Calif., during July or August? M. B.

Suits are worn the year round in San Francisco, and a light top coat is often needed in the evenings even in summertime. A lightweight wool suit will be appropriate for cooler days, and pastel summer suits or print dresses for warmer ones. Cottons are worn, but not as much as in the warmer Washington climate.

Your Baby and Mine

Arguments About Food Never Pay

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

You have only to watch a baby eat his meals to realize how easy it would be for a mother to build up dislikes for food. There is no such thing as a consistently good appetite and the mother who expects one, and acts upset when the baby refuses food, is the one whose practices will encourage appetitelessness.

Sunday I watched my 15-month-old grandson eating his supper. Periodically he has a good appetite and is a big, husky child. But this night he was notional. He cried and pointed at distant objects he wanted in his hand while he ate. He pulled his head back suddenly when the glass of milk was put to his lips. He dodged it cleverly after he had taken one reluctant mouthful. All in all he took about three swallows from the glass and would have no more of it.

He ate his egg as if he enjoyed it. He usually does. He opened his mouth as each spoonful approached and then waited eagerly for the next one to come up.

Next he got some cottage cheese. He is of two minds about this. Sometimes he likes it very well, but tonight he was suspicious of it and frowned when it was fed to him and chewed up and down on it reflectively. After a few spoonfuls he decided he had had enough and he pushed the spoon away and turned his head aside. When his mother tried just one more spoonful he blew it out in all directions. That ended the feeding of cottage cheese.

Then he got his fruit sauce. He likes that and will accept the strained type, familiar from infancy, or the mashed, home canned fruits. He eats them whether they are coarse or fine. In a word, he likes fruit.

He ate the largest portion of a small can and then turned his head aside and wanted no more.

Now his mother returned to the milk again. He saw the glass coming and shook his head from side to side. She poured a little in a saucer and broke an arrowroot cracker into it. He stuck his finger in the milk and picked out the dampened cracker and accepted one spoonful of the milk. Then he sprayed it around in all directions in a completely calm and business-like way.

Seeing that milk was futile, this night, his mother picked him up and carried him to bed and he went to sleep without a murmur and slept all night. It never pays to argue about food, not if you want the child to like it.

An Upstairs Porch Door

If you have an uncovered upstairs porch, the door opening out on it should be carefully weather-stripped and it should have a cast-brass, self-draining sadcle. Otherwise you will never be free of leaks in the ceiling of the room below.

PETUNIA!

The boss is coming over
This very night to dine . . .
Everything must sparkle!
Everything must SHINE!

Then here's a tip for that glassware, Petunia! Add a few drows of lemon juice to the rinse water. It will give your glasses added luster.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Bad Intersection Has Keneipp Stumped

Inasmuch as I drive past the intersection of Pennsylvania and Constitution aves. nw. at least twice a day, I welcome this letter of complaint from R. Stewart of 421 Evarts st. ne.

District Liner Stewart says the intersection gives rise to entirely too many accidents, near-accidents, and frayed nerves—all because both avenues get the green light simultaneously. He wants to know why some improvement isn't made.

In answer, Traffic Director George Keneipp says that before the present system was adopted, there were a great many accidents at that corner. There was a wide open expanse of street, and nothing to channel traffic into an orderly pattern.

The present system is better, but still not satisfactory to the city fathers. So hearings were held by the Commissioners several months ago, and various plans discussed—including "grade separation" (underpass) and some kind of cloverleaf arrangement.

The intersection is now on the traffic director's "active" list of projects, and by 1950 it's scheduled for completion.

But just what will be accepted as the final solution remains to be seen. If you've got some nice, simple—and inexpensive—way to handle the situation, Keneipp would love to hear from you.

EVERY DAY?

If this doesn't start an argument, I'll miss my guess.

The other day I gave vent to a vagrant thought which wondered whether it would ever stop raining for one whole day.

R. H. Wesley of 2117 N. Glebe rd., Arlington, Va., says the answer is a resounding: No.

Sometimes, he says, one must be very observant between 2:05 and 2:07 a. m. But it definitely rains (at least a little bit) every day.

Will somebody who knows more about these things than I do please confirm my suspicion that District Liner Wesley is pulling our legs?

EXPECTANT REX

Mrs. Gay Faulkner of 2823 Minnesota ave. se. slyly suggests that Princess Elizabeth and her Philip are "heirexpecting."

MISCELLANY

Several Government workers have suggested to me that somebody ought to start a theater and concert ticket agency located close to large Federal buildings. Lunch hours just aren't long enough to permit trips to the downtown agencies, according to these folks . . . F. E. Baylis of 1201 13th st. nw. follows up District Liner Cooley's letter about the Naval Observatory by explaining that "sidereal" means: "pertaining to the stars; astral; measured by the apparent motion of the stars." Hmmmm! Wait till the Hollywood publicity agents learn that word . . . A local man has just brought out a new idea in stationery. He's S. R. Dubrowin of 1727 R st. nw., formerly of Uncle Sam's Air Force. Instead of printing your name on your stationery, he reproduces your signature. Most of the big downtown department and book stores are already acting as agents for the idea—which is just another example of how former GIs are creating new postwar businesses . . . Speaking of servicemen, former members of the Merchant Marine are finally being considered "veterans" in some quarters. The Evans F. Carlson Chapter of the American Veterans Committee will meet Tuesday (8:15 p. m., Petworth Library, Georgia ave. and Upshur st. nw.) to discuss a plan to make merchant seamen eligible for AVC membership . . . Four-year-old Carole Kreger of 1228 Raum st. ne. was admiring a neighbor's dog the other day. The neighbor suggested that if Carole loved Brownie so much, she ought to save some dinner table bones for him. Carole thought the proposition over and decided against it, explaining: "My Mommy loves bones, too."

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

I wonder if you realize the average reader's reaction to your column? At our house, it goes something like this:

ME: Did you read the District Line?

BOB: Yeah. Did you see those answers to the major who doesn't like hitchhikers?

ME: That was great stuff, but I certainly didn't like those remarks about women usually being late for their appointments.

BOB: What's the matter—did that one hit too close to home?

ME: No it didn't, smarty. You know I'm usually punctual.

BOB: Punctual! You punctual? What about the time I pulled into your driveway before we were married and caught a glimpse of you in gardening clothes, streaking up the back stairs? I had to sit there and chew the fat with your folks for almost an hour, waiting for you.

ME: We all forget things, at times.

BOB: Not me!

ME: Oh, yeah? What about the time when you were on furlough and you slept through that afternoon date we were supposed to have?

BOB: That could have happened to anybody. But what's that got to do with women not being punctual?

ME: A lot. Women are just as punctual as men, and I'm going to write that Bill a letter and tell him so.

That's the way it goes, Bill. Even when we don't agree with you, the column furnishes a wonderful list of topics for conversation.

Mrs. Robert S. Thorn,
2311 Washington Circle nw.

Dear Mrs. Thorn:

Very interesting. But what's the matter with my item about women drivers? I thought that one would start more arguments than a doubleheader in Brooklyn. I'm disappointed.

Bill.

NEW YORK—Boris Shishkin, the A. F. of L. economist, will leave for Paris shortly to work as Averell Harriman's assistant at ERP . . . In a private conversation recently, Winston Churchill said: "The Jews fighting in Israel are men of courage. I admire courage. I hope they win." . . . The Italian government, with 250,000,000 lira of UNRRA funds will erect a LaGuardia Hospital in the village of San Giovanni Rotundo in the province of Foggia—where LaGuardia's forebears lived. Mrs. LaGuardia and representatives of the One World Award Committee will go to Foggia in August to attend the dedication ceremonies.

The Arthur Koestler rally in Los Angeles was delayed for 20 minutes because Koestler and Robert Montgomery stopped to listen to a Communist sidewalk rally where Koestler was being denounced. Koestler stood in front of the speaker for 20 minutes listening to the attack, and then he and Montgomery rushed away to their own meeting . . . George Welles has left Newsweek to become the editorial page editor of PM. Arthur Robb will succeed him . . . Joan Dulles Molden, daughter of Allen Dulles and niece of John Foster Dulles, has left for Austria with her groom, to live in the house he owns in the Soviet Zone.

Last week at Moss Hart's home in Buck's County, the playwright played 4-hand gin rummy. His partner was George S. Kaufman. They played against Martin Gabel, the producer-director, and his wife, Arlene Francis, star of the "What's My Name?" program . . . Kaufman played well, but Hart had a losing streak and his losses overcame Kaufman's winnings. A guest entered the room, saw the foursome, and asked: "George, how are you doing?" . . . "Terribly," he replied. "I have a partner who is a tower of jello."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

10 Million Held Unable to Write

By Drew Pearson

It hasn't been publicized, but the census takers have unearthed the shocking fact that 10 million American adults cannot read or write.

Georgia's Democratic Congressman Don Wheeler has been begging for 218 of his House mates to sign a discharge petition to force the federal-aid-to-education bill out of the Education and Labor Committee where it has been salted away by the GOP leadership. But he has not been able to scrape up more than 43 names!

Wm. Lemke.

Chief obstacles are Speaker Joe Martin and Majority Leader Charlie Halleck, who have ordered the committee not to let the bill out. Also, they have passed word to Republicans not to sign any discharge petition. So far only one Republican has defied these orders —North Dakota's Bill Lemke, who joined with 42 Democrats already on the petition.

However, Minority Leader Sam Rayburn also has quietly blocked the petition and has succeeded in keeping Texas and Virginia Democrats from signing.

Less Literate Than Russia

Meanwhile, literacy in the United States has sunk to an alarming low—probably lower than Russia. What the public also doesn't realize is that the Nation's 10 million illiterates over 24 years old are not Southern Negroes, but many of them whites. Official statistics show that 4,200,000 adults, who cannot read or write, are whites born in this country. Another 3,100,000 are foreign-born whites, whereas only 2,700,000 are Negroes. The remaining handful are Latin Americans and Orientals by birth.

Furthermore, illiteracy isn't found exclusively in the South. For example, more than one million illiterate adults live in New York, another 696,000 in Pennsylvania and 462,000 in Illinois. However, 36 per cent of Louisiana's total population cannot read or write.

During the war, the draft boards weeded out 350,000 young men who could only sign their name with an X. Of these, 150,000 were physically fit to serve in the Army but were disqualified because of lack of education—a loss to the country of approximately 15 divisions.

Yet House leaders are not willing to spend a few million dollars on a bill already passed by the Senate and which would again make America the most enlightened nation in the world.

State Department's Feeble Voice

Not in years has Congress been caught with a better case of being wrong than in the current squabble over the Voice of America. Yet the diplomats haven't been able to make the public realize that Congress, not the diplomats, are to blame.

Last year Republican economizers cut the Voice of America's appropriation to ribbons, told the State Department to broadcast through private radio channels. The State Department obeyed. It farmed out Latin American radio programs to the National Broadcasting Co., which then proceeded to concoct a series of slipshod programs that insulted Senators.

Now the Senators are angry because the State Department carried out their orders. They are also angry because the State Department didn't have enough money to hire men to monitor the daily deluge of words which NBC and other private radio networks sent abroad.

But the State Department is so meek, mild and inarticulate that it hasn't told the Congressmen in decisive, reverberating language that it was all their own fault.

Note—The more you see of the State Department's propaganda operation, the better Elmer Davis's job looks. Davis was wartime head of the Office of Information, got kicked around by Congress, did an effective job just the same.

People Use Own Voice

Interesting fact about NBC's Voice of America broadcasts is that if NBC operated for General Foods or General Motors with the same carelessness that they worked for their Government, they would be out of business. Looks like dividends came ahead of patriotism.

In contrast, thousands of individual Americans have been helping put across effective propaganda to Europe, with no financial help, no guidance from the State Department and not even any thanks. Here are some of them:

The United Nations Council of Philadelphia is flooding Europe with letters and getting a lot of fine reaction in return . . . Clair McCollough of Station WGAL, Lancaster, Pa., Paul Bartless of KFRE, Fresno, Calif., and B. T. Whitmire of WFBC, Greenville, S. C., are arranging family programs from typical American neighborhoods — telling Europe about life in the USA. World Wide Broadcasting Foundation is transmitting them shortwave to Europe . . . The Richmond, Va., Professional Institute got up a special edition of its college paper in French to be exchanged with French schools and universities . . . Mrs. Isabella Greenway King, former Congresswoman from Arizona, has helped organize "Operation Democracy" which not only has sent relief to Europe, but follows it up with friendship letters . . . Generoso Pope, the New York Italian-American publisher, has helped conduct a shortwave transAtlantic radio contest in Italy on "How to Win the Peace and Make Democracy Live." All sorts of people — Allis-Chalmers, Ingersoll Watches, Harman, Bulova, Helbros Watches, Endicott-Johnson Shoes, Clippercraft Suits, Wing Shirts, Emerson Radios, Lee Hats, Krueger Jewelry Co. of Austin, Tex., Martin Gruenborn in Seattle, Muskogee, Okla., Broadcasting Co. —all have contributed prizes to the Italian Democracy contest. They had no thought of business gain because their products aren't sold in Italy . . . This is just a small cross section of what thousands of Americans, with no expectation of reward other than helping their country, have been doing to wage the difficult battle of peace.

A Weather Map . . . How It Serves

THIS WEEK THE HECHT COMPANY SALUTES THE

U. S. Weather Bureau

AND ITS SKILLED WORKERS WHO FORECAST NATURE'S MOODS

The Weather Bureau . . . had its beginning in a meteorological service, set up in 1870 under the jurisdiction of the Signal Corps of the Army. The service used data furnished by Army posts all over the country. In 1891 the Weather Bureau was organized within the Department of Agriculture . . . and is now a part of the Department of Commerce.

The Weather Bureau . . . in addition to operating the General Public Service, publishing forecasts in almost all newspapers and broadcasting them over seven hundred radio stations daily . . . provides many other services designed for specific needs. The Airways Weather Service provides voluminous data on flying conditions all over the country, as well as for transoceanic flights. An agricultural service disseminates information of value to farmers. The River and Flood Forecasting Service measures the water depth of principal rivers . . . and cooperates with the Red Cross, the Corps of Engineers, the U. S. Coast Guard, and many other agencies in times of flood.

The Weather Bureau . . . operates an extensive Forest-Fire Weather Warning Service. Forecasts cover the weather in detail: Wind, humidity, temperature, atmospheric conditions . . . information valuable in planning the distribution of fire-fighting crews during dangerously dry periods. Also active is the Hurricane and Storm Warning Service . . . aiding marine interests on the Great Lakes, and the Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf Coasts.

The Weather Bureau . . . is assisted in its quest for weather data by over five thousand volunteers living all over the country . . . who serve without pay and send in daily reports of local weather conditions. Some of the members of this unique group of selfless workers have served continuously for over half a century . . . a remarkable record of public service.

The Weather Bureau . . . Forecast Center at the Washington National Airport employs about ninety experts to carry on its duties forecasting the weather for many eastern states and the North Atlantic Ocean area. Providing hurricane warnings and weather information for airlines flying both domestic and overseas routes . . . shipping interests operating on the North Atlantic . . . and the general public . . . they render an invaluable and vital service.

Many an ancient monarch would have opened his royal treasures to the man who could foretell the Weather. Soothsayers were often engaged . . . especially before important military campaigns . . . to peer into the nebulous future . . . All in an attempt to outguess nature. Weather has always been of the utmost importance to mankind . . . uncontrollable and frequently unpredictable. It dictates the yield of our crops . . . the safety and efficiency of transportation, by land, sea and air . . . what kind of clothes we wear . . . and hundreds of other things, great and small, each one important in our everyday lives.

The modern weather expert has advanced far beyond his crystal-gazing predecessor of bygone days. Utilizing the latest scientific knowledge and apparatus . . . plus a tremendous mass of data sent in from all over the country and the world . . . the workers of the U. S. Weather Bureau are able to forecast weather conditions with an extremely high degree of accuracy. Not only are ordinary citizens forewarned of what to expect tomorrow . . . but many business people . . . merchants, farmers, doctors . . . are given advance warnings of weather change, thus being enabled to take steps to fit their activities to the demands of nature.

The Hecht Company is happy to salute the people of the U. S. Weather Bureau . . . students and prognosticators of nature's ever-changing moods.
